On 'zero-based' budgeting bill

Democrats begin move to override veto

Bulletin

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — An attempt to override a veto by Gov. Christopher S. Bond of the so-called "zero base" budgeting bill failed in the Missouri House today. The vote was 95-64.

Bond vetoed the bill April 5 after it had been passed overwhelmingly by the Senate and House. The Senate later overrode the veto but the House delayed in its attempt because it could not muster the ncessary two-thirds vote, which would have required 109 votes.

The strategy to attempt the override was discussed Tuesday afternoon in a caucus of Democratic House members.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Missouri House Democrats began a move today to override the governor's veto of a so-called "zero base" budgeting bill that would revamp the state's budgeting system.

Gov. Christopher S. Bond vetoed the bill April 5.

The stragegy for the override was discussed Tuesday afternoon in a Democratic caucus.

The Senate overode the veto 25-7 on April 5 but the House Democrats delayed because of solidarity among the GOP ranks. The House has 97 Democrats and 66 Republicans. A two-thirds vote is necessary for the override-- which means 112 votes.

The bill was passed by the House 148-7 and by the Senate 25-1 in March. It was the first to be sent to the governor this session.

The bill requires detailed information on appropriations from department heads, down to the nearest $50 of miscellaneous expenditures.

Departments, each four years, would start from zero when they requested money.

Under current practice, agency heads merely justify requests for increases in lump sum appropriations. A similar measure has been written into the House substitute for the Senate reorganization bill now before a conference committee.

Gov. Bond said the bill was too rigid in that it "compels the use of an inflexible classification of expenditures" not appropriate to certain institutions.

Also, Bond said, the bill failed to require that the judicial branch and the legislature provide the same information when those two branches seek appropriations.

Bond says the legislature already has the power to gain more detailed information on a "zero base."

The action came after the Senate plowed through eight appropriations bills Tuesday, approving expenditures totaling $903 million from general revenue (state taxes) for the 1973-74 fiscal year.

Tuesday night, the Senate House conference committee met for the first time to work out differences in two bills to reorganize the executive branch of government.

The committee ended the first session by agreeing to establish a four-man subcommittee to reduce the possibility of disagreement between the five senators and five representatives.

The subcommittee members, one from each party in both houses, are Sen. William J. Cason, D-Clinton, Sen. Richard M. Webster, R-Carthage, Rep. Joe Holt, D-Fulton, and Rep. Robert O. Snyder, R-Kirkwood.

Noticeable absent from the subcommittee is Rep. Harold Volkmer, D-Hannibal, sponsor of the House reorganization bill and a leading advocate of the type transfer method of reorganization.

Volkmer has also led the criticism of the Senate version of reorganization.

Before voting to set up the subcommittee, which excluded Volkmer, the committee members discussed the major problem areas between the House and Senate versions of the legislation.

Voters approved reorganization in a Constitutional amendment in August. They left the details up to the legislature which must come up with legislation by June 15, or the governor can take action by executive order subject to legislative approval.

Just exactly how the legislature will accomplish the task of reorganizing 440 separate programs into 13 departments and the office of administration has taken both houses until now to come up with two vastly different methods.

The Senate approved a 238-page bill detailing many of the changes after trimming their original bill from over 500 pages.

The House approved a bill which sets out the types of authority and responsibilities that new dapartments will have over their agencies but leaves many of the details to be worked out later either by administrative process or revision legislation in later sessions.

The final House bill was about 50 pages.

Senate conferees agreed Tuesday night to allow eight of the 13 new departments to be reorganized by the House type transfer method.

But they withheld approval on the key matter — how much authority will be transferred to the eight departments.

The action means the method of reorganizing all 13 departments is still in question.

The subcommittee will meet today in an attempt to agree on the wording of the transfers delegating the reorganized authority to the new departments.

The House bill has three basic types of transfers.

The subcommittee will then meet tonight with the entire conference committee before working on other parts of the bill.

Perhaps the most significant difference between the two houses concerns the question of senatorial power of advice and consent over the governor's appointments.

Discussion during the first meeting Tuesday night indicated this question will be the subject of major debate in the committee.

Generally, Senate members want to retain the advice and consent they now have. House members think that power is too broad and will act to disrupt effective administration under the new system which attempts to set up a clear line of authority from the governor down.

Among other differences discussed were the salaries to be paid to the new department directors. The Senate version says $30,000 each except for the Director of Mental Health who will get $35,000.

Earlier the Senate approved eight appropriations bills totaling $903 million for the 1973-74 fiscal year.

Seven of the bills were returned to the House after being amended by the Senate, and a $4.4 million bill to pay for operation costs for the legislature was sent to Gov. Christopher S. Bond for his signature.

The total state budget will run over $2 billion,

Flippo returned to jail

Thomas Flippo, a former Sikeston resident who has been living in Holland, Mich., since his escape from jail over a month ago on bogus check charges, was recommitted to jail Tuesday in Magistrate Court on the order of Judge Lloyd Briggs.

Flippo was recaptured last week in Stoddard county after returning to visit his wife. He now faces another charge of passing bogus checks. Judge Briggs gave him two weeks to find an attorney.

Bogus check charges against Rex Holland of the Holland Stave Co. in Doniphan were dismissed on payment of restitution. Holland was charged with passing a $150 bogus check at Sikeston IGA Foodliner.

Bogus check charges against Willie Partee of Lilbourn were dismissed on payment of restitution. He was charged with passing a $37 bogus check at the J. C. Penny Co. store in Sikeston.

Bogus check charges against Rex Allen Gardner, 702 Montgomery, were dismisseed on payment of restitution. Gardner was charged with passing a $7 bogus check at the Safeway store in Sikeston.

Jackie Wayne Mayberry of Scott City was placed on two-year probation for the April 20 burglary of $500 worth of tires from the St. Louis Southwestern Railway Co.

Larry Joe Vinson was placed on two- year probation for the April 16 burglary of $500 worth of household goods from the Phyllis Jones residence of Benton Route One.

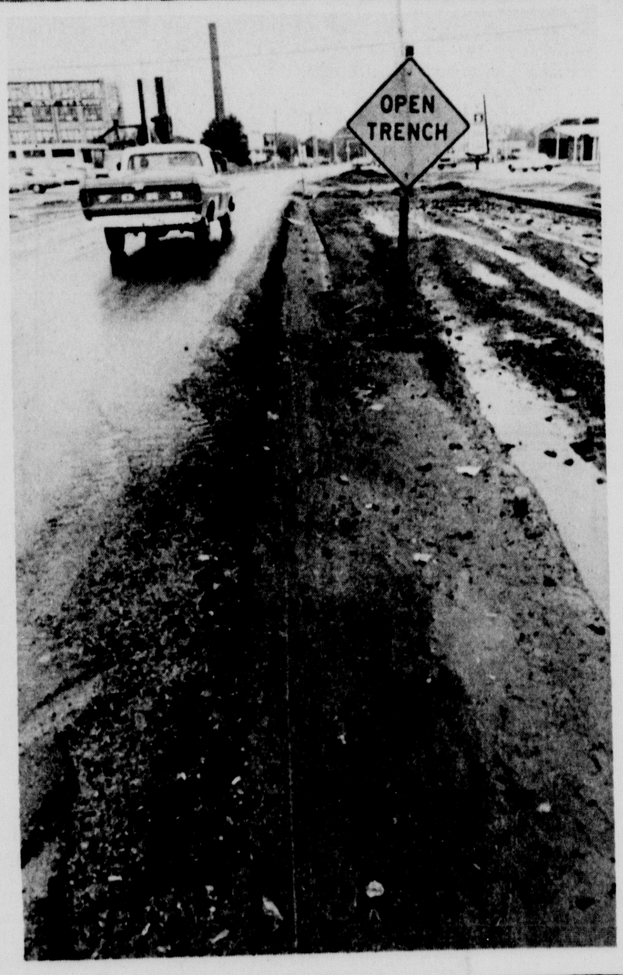
Sentencing was deferred until July 24 for three young men who are trying to enlist in military service. They are Edward Hobgood of Bernie, charged with car theft; Richy Ayers of Bernie, charged with car theft; and Mike Jennings of Bernie, charged with the Jan. 1 burglary of $325 worth of goods from Satterfield's Auto Repair Shop.

The military services are reluctant to accept persons with police records, so the court will defer sentencing to give the three a chance to get into the service. If they are successful, charges will be dropped. Assistant prosecuting attorney Steve Taylor said if the men fail to stay in service, the charges could be refiled.

Countdown begins today

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The countdown started today for man's first space salvage operation, with astronauts and space officials confident they can repair the crippled orbiting Skylab and complete a 28-day flight.

Launch crews began the count on schedule at 5:30 a.m. EDT as they fed electrical power to the Saturn 1B rocket and astronauts' Apollo ferry ship. Planned liftoff time is 9 a.m. EDT Friday.



Street is dangerous

Uncompleted work on the Main Street widening project has left open ditches along the sides of the road and problems for drivers trying to cross the ditches from side streets to get onto the highway. The top photo looks south along South Main near Matthews Avenue, the bottom photo looks north. Girardeau Contractors, Inc., in charge of the project, says work cannot resume until the ground has dried out.

Bloomfield ok's school bonds

BLOOMFIELD— Voters approved a $300,000 bond issue Tuesday by a lopsided 510- 79 margin to finance improvements in the Bloomfield R- 14 School District.

The bond issue will pay for the installation of a standby heating system for use when natural gas supplies are cut off during cold weather. Gas cutback last winter forced the school to close several times.

Funds for the purchase of at least three buses to replace older buses and provide better transportation and lower maintenance costs were included in the bond proposal.

Four elementary classrooms for children with learning disabilities will be constructed and space for the library and art department will be added to the high school with funds from the bonds.

The bond issue will also provide new roofing and roof repairs for all buildings,covered walkways between buildings, new lighting for both the high school and elementary buildings, furnishings and equipment for the new facilities, parking and playground equipment and the purchase of additional land for later expansion.

The bond proposal will not increase the school tax levy, according to school officials.

Fire destroys home

DEXTER — One house was destroyed and another badly damaged Tuesday in fires less than one mile apart.

The home of Larry McMullin southwest of Essex was destroyed and the Donald Henson home east of Dexter, owned by Amon Miller, was badly damaged. Both fires are believed to have been started by an electrical storm.

The Dexter fire department answered both calls, and the Essex fire department also fought the McMillin home fire.

No injuries were reported in either fire.

But they saved the chili...

Firemen rushed to the Harvey Scott home, 330 Crowe St., at 6:54 p.m. Tuesday when a neighbor saw smoke coming from the house and discovered that the only thing burning was the Scotts' supper.

Fire Chief Larry Linnemeyer said the Scotts had rushed out of the house when they received word that a friend had been injured in a traffic accident. In their haste they left their supper on the stove, the television on and the doors wide open.

Linnemeyer said the potatoes were a total loss, but that firemen managed to save the chili.

At 11 p.m. Linnemeyer was called by a woman who told him her hot water heater was leaking and she wanted it shut off. The woman, who lives in the housing project at 136 Cardinal, told Linnemeyer she had called the maintenance man and he had told her to call the fire department because he didn't want to come.

The fire chief said he went to the project and shut off the heater, then added that he might send a bill for his services.

Frost damage may boost cost of strawberries

By PAT GROJEAN

Prices on fresh strawberries will probably be a little high this year, because of the frost damage in April to the crop. The peach and apple crops were also victims of the frost.

Henry DiCarlo, horticulturist at the Delta Center in Portageville, said that about one third of the strawberry crop is left from the freeze, but what fruits there are are nice. The frost occurred April 11, DiCarlo said, and killed the flowers that were open and the large and small buds.

He said that about May 12, the Hornersville growers did start picking strawberries, but this is "somewhat later than usual." The reason is that the early blooms and buds froze, thus causing the early picking season to be lost.

Strawberry plants in this area bloom and fruit the first of May or June, and have a once- a- year fruiting period.

Prices may be higher, but consumers need to realize that growers have a problem because their costs remain the same, while the crop is short, DiCarlo said. He explained that even though fewer berries are produced, the cost of producing these is as high as if it were an average crop.

C&L Orchard in Dexter reported that the freeze cut their strawberry crop about half, and destroyed about 85 per cent of the peach crop and 55 per cent of the apple crop.

Peaches and apples did receive some damage, but most growers are still trying to assess the loss, DiCarlo said. He added that it is puzzling because at certain sites, nearly half the crop may have escaped, while at other sites, most of the crop was lost. It varies by site, elevation and varieties, he added. "The best guesses that growers are stating is about one fourth to one third of the crop has been damaged," DiCarlo said.

Peaches usually begin to ripen around mid June and peak about mid to late July.

There has been some injury to apples, DiCarlo said, although they are heartier than peaches and can apparently stand more cold. DiCarlo predicted there would be a reasonably good apple crop and that the apple situation was much better than peaches.

Some of the strawberry growers mentioned by DiCarlo were Lawrence Miller of Clarkton, W.D. Maddox of Gideon, Pat Burlison and Junior Tucker of Hornersville, Mrs. Bob Jackson of Charleston, John Hayes of Campbell, Homer Stamp of Illmo, Thelmo Chism of Dexter and Carlton Rogers of Dexter.

Other growers on his mailing list are Bill White of Bloomfield, Rex Williamson of Bloomfield, V.M. Watkins of Puxico, Robert Andrews of Puxico, Paul Sitton of Dexter, Archie Thurston of Dexter, Doyle Frances of Advance, Lawrence Thurman of Cape Girardeau, Joe Robinson of East Prairie, Sarah Harris of New Madrid and Robert Scott of New Madrid.

Acreages of strawberries are not as great as they once were in the Bootheel, according to DiCarlo. One of the difficulties is lack of labor. Strawberries require a high degree of labor, especially at harvest time. And the fact that they are a very perishable commodity, makes it necessary to harvest immediately.

Another reason for the decline is that berry prices did not keep pace with the expenditures farmers had to make for plants, chemicals and machinery.

A third reason is that many strawberries now are imported from Mexico, especially for processing. DiCarlo said that this area used to grow a lot of processing berries, but no one around here does any more.

There was no sharp beginning to the decline, he said, but it seemed to start in the early 1960's.

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Negotiations were scheduled to resume this afternoon in the 34-day-old strike by Ozark Air Lines mechanics, which has idled some 1,800 Ozark employes and shut down operations in 62 cities.

Health program termed failure

MALDEN — The Bootheel Regional Health Council Tuesday night recommended that the Family Health Services program of the Delmo Corporation cease to be funded for continuation of the program.

Council members said Family Health Services has not met criteria established a year ago and has failed to get endorsements from providers of health services. The council also felt the cost of administration of the program was too high, using 70 per cent of the total budget for that purpose.

Four other programs were approved, including the state division of health program for the prevention of veneral disease at a budget of $1,827,205; state division of health immunization program, $285,000 budget; Delmo Migrant Health Program, $81,605 budget and the Senior Citizen supplementary assistance program of Delta Area Economic Opportunity Corporation, $22,972 budget. The DAEOC program assists four projects consisting of the senior transportation programs in Malden and Hayti Heights, the senior citizens hot meal program in Charleston and the provision of additional mileage for DAEOC family service aides to transport persons to medical facilities.

Don Whitehead of the Comprehensive Council in Jefferson City announced that the Bootheel Comprehensive Council will be officially approved for a budgeted program of $66,376, beginning June 1.

The council will hold its next meeting June 19. New officers will be elected and council members will be appointed to four year terms.

PAYS TO ADVERTISE

Newspaper publishers who squirm under threats, real or imagined, of censorship and government control, are apt to get almost violent when someone suggests that business and industry could save a lot of money by discontinuing all advertising. Some misguided theorists even go so far as to suggest that laws be passed prohibiting advertising on the grounds that with this expense eliminated consumers would pay lower prices.

These theorists evidently believe the American economic system is a sort of perpetual motion machine that rolls along under its own momentum with no stimulus from the efforts and initiative of businessmen. They do not realize that advertising is used not only to promote the sale of goods and services in a competitive market, but also to give information about issues of public interest affecting the operation of basic industries whose products are essential to the nation.

For example, in nearly 15 states some action has been started to either abolish or restrict advertising by utility companies. This could become a dangerous situation in a nation where majority public opinion determines the success or failure of any business enterprise, no matter how large or small. It has been established by opinion surveys that most people favor investor ownership of public utility companies over government membership, and these companies need some means of communication with their consumers.

Suppose that electric companies, for instance, would be prevented from advertising on the grounds that there is an energy shortage. So why advertise? Carry this a bit further — many people feel there are already too many automobiles, so why permit the car manufacturers to advertise, especially when these cars use up already - short gasoline supplies.

Shortages of many food products exist, so why should the stores advertise for customers? Because some people believe that television sets are a bad influence on the young, shouldn't makers and dealers be banned from advertising these products? Carry this as far as you like, but the fact remains that advertising has been one means of maintaining a competitive market and keeping prices where they are, instead of even higher.

When people talk of killing off advertising, they are talking about eliminating something that makes every Main Street in the country go into the competitive free market, as well as providing the chief and independent support for a free press. If competitive advertising is prohibited, it would be followed by a host of other free trade restrictions, and this restriction would move into other fields. Can you guess whose basic freedoms would be collared in long run? Yours.

Speaking of advertising, we are reminded of the classic story of William Wrigley of chewing game fame. Wrigley was said to have been riding on a train with a friend (this was long time ago) when the friend pointed to the frequent Wrigley gum signs along the right of way and adjacent highways. "Why do you spend all this money on advertising?" asked the friend. "Your business is establsihed, your gum is famous and the competition is almost non-existent." "Well," answered Wrigley, "How fast you think this train is going?" "Oh about 60 miles an hour," answered the puzzled friend, "Why?" "Don't you think that is fast enough?" Wrigley said. "Why don't they just take off the engine and save all that expense?" The friend had no comment.

"Two basic errors in news policy imperil the First Amendment, the news media and the Republic itself. The first is an over- emphasis of the "adversary philosophy." This is the notion the news media must be forever opposed to and critical of every facet of society, government, business, church, education. The second error is the "advocacy theory," the practice of shaping news content to conform to editorial policy. Often this error is unintentional, tracing to fundamental failures in the selection (or rejection) or news date and the interpretation placed thereon. But it always misleads the public." — John E. Tilton, National Advisory Board, AIM (Accuracy in Media), Washington.

IN A NUTSHELL

In our industrialized, suburbanized society, orderly day - to - day living depends on the uninterrupted services of certain basic activities. Every time a railroad strike is threatened, people are reminded that railroads are among those vital services that must be maintained.

Unfortunately, except in these moments of crisis, the railroads are usually taken for granted. Consequently, the handicaps, under which they have been operating for many years, have been ignored by the public, Congress and regulatory authorities. The president of the Association of American Railroads, Mr. Thomas M. Goodfellow, put the railroad situation in a nutshell when he said, "If I may use the vernacular, I'd say the No. 1 trouble is the name of regulation. No responsible person in the railroad industry objects to regulation, as such. But all responsible railroad people object to regulatory restraints carried over from the last century. The other paramount railroad problem is inequality in government promotion of the several modes. It's absolutely incredible that a government can pour out unlimited tax dollars -- $229 billion in the past 15 years alone -- for forms of transportation in competition with railroads, and still treat railroads as though competition did not exist."

The broad range of railroad problems have been reviewed and corrective recommendations made in the Report of America's Sound Transportation Review Organization. They all add up to one conclusion. Either the railroads will be allowed to go ahead as private enterprises and attract the capital needed to meet demands, or the taxpayers will be saddled with the astronomical cost of maintaining rail transport through nationalization. The fact remains that the railroads are among those services without present - day society cannot function.

Are you getting a little tired of hearing young people accuse the older generation of all the ills in the world? Then you'll appreciate a letter W. F. McCurdy, vice president of public relations for Sears, wrote to his college - bound son.

Among other things the letter pointed out: "You are fortunate to be a citizen by birth of the greatest country on this earth. Your generation has been freed of the nagging worries of food, clothing and shelter. You're the product of an affluency which has been created for you by your parents.

"Today's generation is able to afford a hypersensitivity to social problems ... but sensititivity is not the property of the young, nor was it invented in 1950. Your generation didn't invent it, and what you seek to attain all mankind has sought to attain.

"We (the older generation) are the people who have increased the life expectancy in this country by more than 50 per cent. We have eradicated plagues ... developed the Salk vaccine ... reduced the working day by one-third and at the same time more than doubled per capita output.

"We are the people who built thousands and thousands of high schools and colleges and spent billions on higher education to make it available to the millions. We are the people who defeated Hitler, contained Stalin, and made Khrushchev back down. Today there is a flag and a plaque on the moon attesting to the fact that we put the first man there. We have split the atom ... created great literature, exciting architecture, and conducted experimentations in all the arts ..."

Mr. McCurdy then points out that there are many things his generation has not done right, and there are many things his son's generation can do to solve social and economic problems.

THAT DIRTY MONEY

JEFFERSON CITY — The national Watergate scandal has a message for Missouri, according to one of the state's top election campaign experts.

Millions of dollars are poured into campaign treasuries in Missouri, and into lobbyists' accounts to gain favor with politicians, Al Sikes pointed out in a speech this week. "This money is the lifeblood of political leaders and creates severe temptations."

Sikes was director for Gov. Christopher S. Bond's campaign last fall and was director for the campaign of Attorney General John C. Danforth when he ran in 1970 for the U. S. Senate. Now he is director of the state Department of Community Affairs, and is a former assistant attorney general.

He is concerned about the damage done to our system of government, when money is used to buy influence and when dirty campaign tactics are used. The Watergate election campaign scandal, and similar practices, "seriously taint both political parties and the legislative and judicial branches," he said.

"It seems clear, as we review the scandals that have rocked government in this country and in Missouri, that large sums of secret money are normally the root causes," he noted in a speech to the Owensville chamber of Commerce. "I have seen the temptation created by offers of large sums of money ..."

Yet, he pointed out, attempts in the Missouri legislature to strengthen regulation of campaign spending, conflict of interest and lobbyist laws have met with virtually no success. "I am discouraged by what I see."

The state Corrupt Practices Act is a sham, Sikes said. "The holes in this law are exceeded only by a fish net. Gov. Bond's proposal for strengthening campaign spending laws should receive immediate attention."

Sikes believes cash contributions of more than $100 should be prohibited. Candidates should be required to make regular public disclosure of all campagin contributions, regardless of the amount or form or when they are made. The size of individual and non-party organization contributions and loans should be restricted, he said.

Organizations that contribute to political campaigns must be required to disclose the sources of their money. The disclosures must be made before and after the elections, instead of just after the election as Missouri law says.

News media access to political financing "is at the heart of strengthening our campaign laws," Sikes said. A bipartisan state commission must be created to assure effective investigation and enforcement, instead of relying on elected officials, he said.

He also urged beefing up the state's "severely weak lobbyist disclosure law. The public has a right to know how much a lobbyist is receiving, the source of the funds, who receives the money and in what amounts" in the efforts to influence votes in the legislature.

Bills to tighten the Campaign Corrupt Practices Act and the lobbyist law have been before state lawmakers for several years, but they always die a quiet death, usually in committees. Both parties say they support the change, but no changes have been made.

Sikes concluded that it is important for the executive and legislative branches and the Republican and Democratic parties to recognize a serious loss of confidence that the citizens have in their government and their political leaders.

A 42% INCREASE IN 3 YEARS

For 76 years Abercrombie & Fitch built a reputation as a "Grand old institution" for sporting goods, but hardly a place to shop. Profits tailed off and in 1964, alarmed stockholders picked a new president — Earle K. Angstadt, and gave him free rein.

Angstadt realized that more imagination was needed than merely outfitting African safaris, vacationers on their way to Rio, or skiers headed for the Bavarian Alps. The great middle class had changed and was just as intrigued by a money- saving bargain as tenement dwellers.

A&F made prices more competitive, remodeled departments, put revolving displays and customers in windows, opened an in-store travel agency, staged a "resort home show" on the roof, extended catalog selling, sent out huge mailings, and even added the New York News and campus newspapers to their advertising schedule.

An "Outrageous Warehouse Sale" drew 50,000 people the first day. Shoppers lined up the day before the sale started and police had to control the crowds. In three days a quarter of a million white elephants were sold. The next sale is three years away. "We are hoarding our cats and dogs" Angstadt says.

A&F sales jumped from $18 million to $25.5 million in three years. It is no longer a sporting goods store, Angstadt insists. "We are not totally related to the leisure market."

"I LOVE TO FLY"

Flying is almost a daily routine for countless thousands of persons; and, over the years, many millions have become as accustomed to riding in an airplane as our forefathers were to riding in a horse and buggy. And yet, the fact remains that compared to the total population air travel has, as yet, been experience enjoyed by a comparatively few people. Out of a population of over 200 million in the United States, something over 450,000 of us fly daily on some 15,000 flights within the U. S. every 24 hours. This is no figure to sneeze at, but the airlines feel there remains a vast untapped group of potential air travelers.

In one of the most interesting institutional advertisements that has appeared in a long time, a group of U. S. airlines present the story in The Reader's Digest of just what it is like to fly for the first time. More importantly, it tells a neophyte how to proceed from the time he or she reaches the airport of departure until arrival at his destination. The advertisement is presented on a conversational manner as though a stewardess or hostess were leading the first- time air traveler by the hand. She takes him through the check-in process, the waiting room and finally onto the plane. Every step, including the sensation of flying, which in a modern jet is one of the most soothing experiences one can enjoy, is explained and graphically demonstrated with colorful illustrations. One page is devoted to an account of flight planning, weather reporting, plane maintenance, meals and so forth. Every flight is prefaced by reams of computer work on weather and flight planning, after which the captain of the plane -- a pilot with thousands of hours of experience -- passes judgment on the route to be taken. The flight is monitored from the moment of takeoff to landing by ground controllers.

All in all, the message in the advertisment, as given by a remarkably well- informed hypothetical hostess, is one that should make everyone want to take that first trip in an airplane. It's almost a certainty -- and the airlines know it -- that the first flight will lead to a repetition of that commonly heard expression, "I love to fly."

A PLUS FOR PRIVATE ENTERPRISE

The international airline business has one unique characteristic so far as U. S. international air carriers are concerned. U. S. carriers are taxpaying, investor - owned enterprises, while private ownership in the airline industry is unknown in other nations. The farther removed nationally- owned airlines are from the impact of private enterprise competition the worse the service gets, judging by a news report on the airlines of Eastern Europe.

As described in Time magazine, "... most Eastern European lines fly Soviet aircraft, which are primarily designed for rapid conversion into military transports. The seats are uncomfortably narrow and invariably dusty. More often than not, seat belts refuse to fasten. Pressurization is weak and uncertain." In addition, ground service is poor, and schedules are erratic. If a plane is diverted from it original destination, passengers may find themselves stranded for indefinite periods with no assistance from the airline. Who cares whether passengers on a government - owned airline get good service? If they don't like it, they can stay home. There is no competition from private enterprise.

U. S. international air carriers depend for survival upon pleasing the customer. The combination of striving to please customers, and the unparalleled comfort of the jet age -- especially as epitomized in the new 747-- has brought travel within the reach of the average person. As millions of new air "converts" discover the pleasures of second generation jet transportation, world travel will surge to new heights, and the complexion of international relationships will improve immeasurably. Much of the credit must go to the kind of private initiative that knows passengers like dust-free seats and seat belts that work.

"That's quite a slice you had on that golf ball," said the angry policeman to the sheepish duffer. "It curved clear off the course and broke the windshielf of my squad car. Just what do you intend to do about it?"

"Well," said the golfer, "I was thinking that probably the best thing to do would be to try moving my knuckles a little farther up on the club."

LESSONS OF HISTORY

"Case Yellow" was launched at 0330 hours on May 10, 1940. B.H. Lidell Hart, the great military historian said of it: "The course of the world in our time was changed, with far- reaching effects on the future of all peoples..." "Yellow" was the code name for the German invasion of France in World War II. Thirty- three years later we might ponder the words of Liddell Hart. Europe did change and the whole world felt the impact.

Post- war examination showed that the French had a superiority in weapons and men but the will to fight and the leadership were not there when France needed them most. Communists had been at work in the propaganda field in France. It was at that disgusting moment in history when Hitler and Stalin were allies and the Kremlin was aiding Hitler in his schemes of divide and conquer. Stalin would get his repayment from the Nazis later, but in the meantime the world of freedom suffered.

We must keep ourselves strong here at home. We must elect leaders who have an enthusiasm for patriotism. The vicious work of communism and Nazism were demonstrated to the world in 1940 and the power structure of Europe was changed forever. No longer would Europe, the cradle of our ancestry, be the tower of strength and culture. The lot would fall to us to carry the torch. Russian communism still menances, even more than it did in 1940 when the future of all people was changed. We alone can prevent another "Case Yellow." HLH

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON— President Nixon is quietly preparing to fight back against the Watergate charges.

The thrust of his counterattack isn't certain. But trusted aides are putting together evidence that subversives were conspiring to undermine the political system.

These aides, working in strict secrecy, are trying to show that the threat of subversion and violence during the 1972 campaign justified extreme counter measures.

If the President adopts the line they are preparing, the word will go out from the White House that Reds, radicals and subversives sought to bring down the system by creating political turmoil. Some of these radicals, it will be charged, infiltrated the George McGovern campaign.

It has always been the first rule of Nixon politics that the best defense is an offense. In private. the President has become militant about Watergate. He has told intimates that he has no intention of going back on television with a long apology for the Watergate offenses.

He indicated, instead, that he will hit back at his accusers. He will explain for the record that he can't offer detailed denials without interfering with the judicial processes and jeopardizing the rights of the accused. Then he intends to counterattack.

It is quite true that the White House was flooded with scare stories on the eve of the 1972 campaign. Most of them came from Robert Mardian, then the Justice Department's internal security chief, who worked himself into a state of political paranoia.

He began chasing subversive shadows with such a vengeance that his counterespionage efforts took on the dimensions of a police- state operation. He bombarded his superiors with warnings of civil disorders and political disruptions. Among those who received his intelligence reports were the Watergate conspirators.

DIRE WARNINGS

We have obtained access to some of these hush- hush reports, which White House aides are also searching for evidence for the President's counterattack. As nearly as we could determine from the dozens of documents we have examined, however, the dire warnings turned out to be highly inflated.

Typical was a January 18, 1972, memo to Mardian from the chief of his Analysis and Evaluation Section, John L. Martin, reviewing "current intelligence." The "principal objective" of the "antiwar leaders," he warned ominously, was to disrupt the Republican convention and to defeat President Nixon.

"The disruption of the Republican convention represents the final phase of a three- phase program designed to defeat President Nixon in the 1972 presidential election," declared the intelligence analysis.

"Phase One was the People's Grand Jury Demonstration held in Washington, D.C., on October 25, 1971. Phase Two will consist of individuals following President Nixon's campaign around the country urging his defeat.

"Phase Three consists of a plan to have 500,000 to one million people attend the Republican National Convention in an attempt to deny President Nixon the Republican Party nomination."

The convention then was scheduled to be held in San Diego, and the analysis quoted a confidential FBI source as reporting the disrupters "have secured approximately 3,000 guns (small arms of various descriptions) and are equipping several trucks with armor plating." It was a report, however, that couldn't be verified.

The convention later was moved to Miami where, according to the confidential reports, 2,082 crack paratroopers from the 82nd Airborne Division were dispatched in case the police and National Guard couldn't handle the anticipated violence.

An anxious Community Relations Service task force, which was also sent to Miami to quiet tensions, "met with the Commanding General of the 82nd Airborne Division, explained the CRS role and indicated some of the CRS concerns if the military is deployed."

The daily crisis reports sent back to the Justice Department from both the Democratic and Republican conventions, however, showed that only a handful of agitators went to Miami with violence in mind.

Typical was this report on the eve of the GOP convention: "At present there are no major indications of problems. We have made initial contact with officials and community groups. From these initial meetings, there is an indication that there will be minimal or no involvement of minority community groups. The protesting groups intend to keep things non- violent..."

Mardian's nightmare never materialized.

NEW YORK (AP) — Things a correspondent might never know if he didn't open his mail:

African native wives refuse to eat eggs for fear they will have bald- headed babies. On the other hand, spiders are prized delicacies in some sections of Southeast Asia and India. They are rich in protein. Food is a matter of geography as well as taste.

America is getting two-wheel- minded. Last year, for the first time since the first World War, more bicycles than cars were sold in this country. About 40 per cent of Americans now ride bikes for exercise, and many use them as vehicles to go to and from work.

Doctors often resent a public impression that they are greatly overpaid. The American Medical Association points out that a government survey last year showed physicians averaged an income of $40,500 annually for a work week of 62-63 hours. On the basis of a 40- hour week, that would amount to $26,000 a year.

Household hint: Many diners don't like an extremely fishy taste in fish. This can often be avoided if you clean the fish immediately after catching them.

Quotable notables: "Nothing is easier than fault-finding; no talent, no self-denial, no brains, no character are required to set up in the grumbling business." — Robert West.

Some difference: Ever wonder what the real difference is between a million and a billion? Well, if you gave your wife $1 million and told her to spend it shopping at the rate of $1,000 per hour for 40 hours a week, it would take her only 25 weeks to get rid of it all. But if you gave her $1 billion to spend at the same right, it would keep her happy for some 481 years. So why not give her the billion?

Council takes action on city improvement projects

PORTAGEVILLE — Action on several projects, including proposed street blacktopping, mosquito control and possible a garbage collection system operated by the city, is underway by the city council, headed by Mayo Barry Richardson, who assumed duties two weeks ago.

Announcing the project under consideration, Mayor Richardson said "We want the people to know the council is aware of the problems. We can't cure all of them, but we are trying ro cure some of them. Streets proposed for blacktopping, with property owners and the city sharing costs are Clover Lane; Workman Street, between Sixth and Seventh streets; Tenth Street, between McArthur and McCrate streets; the north 300 to 400 feet of King Street near the school; Eighth Street, from Huffman to McArthur Streets; around the armory to 12th Street and over to McCrate Street; Fifth Street, from McCrate to King, and Route 162, in the city limits.

In addition to the blacktopping, graveling will be done in areas where needed and also to streets in the Bay Ditch area.

Richardson said the city has purchased a new backhoe and is looking for a used motor grader to improve ditches and street drainage before the street work can be done.

Delivery of a new mosquito fogging machine is expected within three or four weeks. Richardson said the machine is four times larger and can cover more territory than the old machine. Until the new machine arrives, Richardson said the company is providing a slightly smaller foging machine.

Richardson said a study of costs and revenue income is being made to determine if a city operated garbage collection system would be feasable. He noted that citiens are paying from $1.0 to $3.00 monthly to various haulers and said perhaps the city could do a better job.

Following a disaster relief meeting, attended by the mayor and Don Rone on May 8 in Sikeston, Richrdson said the city has been signed up for funds to repair any damages to streets and water pumps resulting from flooding.

Caulfield feels Nixon offered clemency

WASHINGTON (AP) — John J. Caulfield testified today that he believed the offer of executive clemency he transmitted to James McCord came from President Nixon.

"It crossed my mind that this conceivably was from President Nixon," the former White House aide said.

Caulfield told Senate investigators he knew the offer was an illegal obstruction of justice, but added, "What I'm saying to you, sir, is that my loyalty to the President of the United States overrode those considerations."

Caulfield repeated that he had no personal knowledge that anyone higher than former presidential counsel John W. Dean III had authorized the offer. The President has denied that he authorized or knew about any such offer.

Caulfield testified at the Senate's televised Watergate hearings.

He was asked by Sen. Lowell P. Weicker, R-Conn., what he meant when he testified that he had considered he was doing a "great service for the President" when he offered clemency to McCord, who was then on trial for burglary, conspiracy and wiretapping in the Watergate case.

"It was a great honor for me to serve as a member of the President's staff," Caulfield said. "I had come from a rather humble background, a police officer....I felt very strongly about the President, extremely strongly about the President.

"I was very loyal to the people I worked for. I placed a high value on loyalty. Now out of the blue I'm injected into this scandal. I'm being asked by one of my former superiors to deliver a message that I know to be executive clemency. I tried to avoid it..."

When Dean insisted that he deliver the offers personally, Caulfield said, "I make certain judgments...In my mind I felt that the President probably did know about it. Now I'm going out the door to be more specific, and it crossed my mind that this conceivably was from the President. I believed it. I had to think about that. And based upon all of that background I believed I was doing something from the President of the United States, and I did it, sir."

Caulfield said he thought he was acting to help the President, that he was acting as a messenger between Dean and McCord.

"I know when wrongdoing is occurring," he said. "I knew the offer of executive clemency in this matter was wrong. What I'm saying to you, sir, is that my loyalty to the President of the United States overrode those considerations."

In response to questions from Sen. Lowell Weicker, R-Conn., Caulfield said "there's a definite conflict sir, you're absolutely right ... I knew the offer of executive clemency in this was wrong. What I'm saying is, my loyalty to the President of the United States overrode those considerations."

Caulfield answered a firm "yes sir" when Sen. Daniel Inouye, D-Hawaii, asked: "Am I to conclude that you were aware you were involved in a criminal act of obstructing federal investigations?

Caulfield reiterated to Senate Watergate investigators, at their televised hearings, that he had no direct knowledge that Nixon "made such an offer, endorsed such an offer or in fact had extended such an offer."

Samuel Dash, counsel to the Senate's Watergate committee, questioned Caulfield in detail about the offer of executive clemency.

Nixon said Tuesday he authorized no offer of clemency and was not aware of any.

Uhr resigns as fire inspector

CHAFFEE — Fire Chief Charles Uhr resigned as fire inspector at Monday night's City Council meeting.

Rhr, who was hired on May 8 to inspect businesses in Chaffee, based his resignation on lack of support by the City Council.

The council announced that C & B Construction Co. will begin later this month to clean up the sewer project for the city.

A committee was appointed by the council to look into the possibility of purchasing a new police car.

New remote control fogging equipment was purchased to help rid the city of mosquitoes.

The council instructed city police to contact property owners about old abandoned cars on their property.

Building inspector Matt Hahn announced that he had issued building permits to Richard Smiley, 115 Frates, for a storage building and Ralph Boyer Construction Co. of Sikeston for a new housing project.

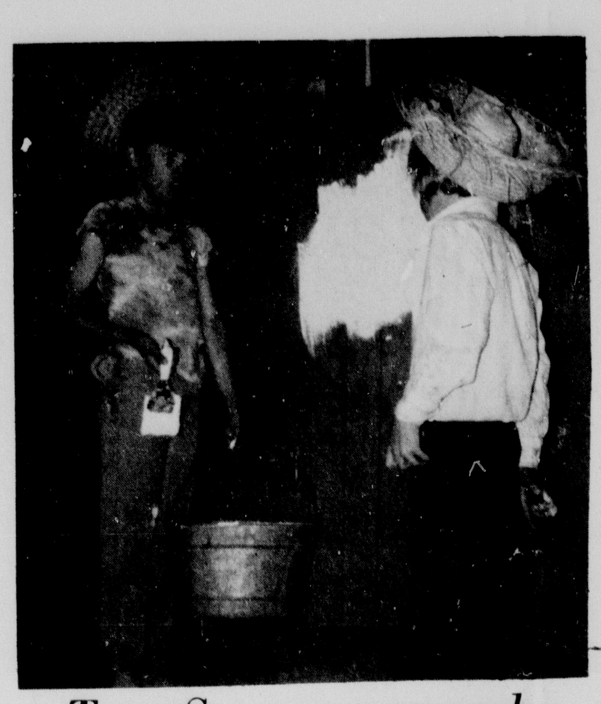
The chore begins

Tom Sawyer, portrayed by Benny Gilliland, begins the chore of painting Aunt Polly's fence as he acts out a scene from Mark Twain's "The Adventures of Tom Sawyer'' recently at Southwest Elementary School. The fourth grade classes of the school presented the play at the conclusion of their study of Missouri.

Since George Washington had no children, all his descendants are collateral.



Tom Sawyer persuades

Robbers in jail

Daniel Lasters, with gun, efficiently puts Clifford Wilkerson, center, and Donald Fodge in jail after a make- believe train holdup. The scene is from Silver Dollar City, near Branson. The children are from Mrs. Ruby Silverthorn's fourth grade class at Southwest Elementary School who participated in several skits in "Traveling Across Missouri'' recently at the school.

Whitewashing becomes easier

Wagons leave Kansas City

Fourth graders, from left, Andy Miederhoff, Steve Seiler, Kathleen Williams, Tracy Sutton and Darla Daugherty re-enact a scene from the St. Louis World's Fair of 1904 as the rest of the fourth grade classes sang, "Meet Me in St. Louie, Louie", in a play at Southwest Elementary School. Mimi visits Branson

Kim Castleberry, left, from Mrs. Sally Neel's room, represented Sikeston's well- known harpist, Mimi Allen, as she visits Silver Dollar City at Branson. Karen Meyers, candlemaker, and Janet Cobb, as Granny, from Mrs. Ruby Silverthorn's room, demonstrate their wares. The girls were participating in the fourth grade class play, "Traveling Across Missouri", at Southwest School after studying the history of Missouri.

Home plumbing topic of extension clubs

Simple home plumbing repairs was the topic of leader training meetings held in Benton May 4, in Charleston May 8 and in Bloomfield May 16. Home management leaders from Extension Homemakers Clubs attended the sessions.

The training was conducted by Fredericka Plummer of Charleston, area home economist, who told the leaders that, if she could change a washer in a dripping faucet, they could, too.

The leaders brought screwdrivers and wrenches to the meeting. During a practice session they took a faucet apart, took out the washer, replaced the washer and put the faucet back together.

Most of the leaders are presenting programs on "Be Wise About Simple Home Plumbing Repairs" in their clubs in May or June. They are using a publication from the University of Missouri Extension Division as their guide. This publication, C914, "Simple Home Plumbing Repairs", will be available from county extension centers.

The following leaders attended the meeting in Benton: Mrs. R. M. Painton of Painton; Mrs. Wilfred Urhahn and Mrs. Harry Swinger of Benton; Mrs. Hershel Riggs, Mrs. Milton Johnson, Mrs. Ella Minner, Mrs. Clyde Barnes, Mrs. Bob Clark, Mrs. James Beech, Mres. Roberta Rowe and Mrs. Jodie Gillespie of Sikeston; Mrs. Bob Miller of Commerce; and Mrs. Charles Cox of East Prairie.

Leaders attending at Charleston were: Mrs. Byron McDowell, Mrs. Charles McCloskey, Mrs. Carl Darnell, Mrs. Katie M. S. Ivy, Mrs. John J. Stricker, Mrs. Norbert Halter and Mrs. J. J. Reeves of Charleston; Mrs. Ed Heckert of Bertrand; and Mrs. R. L. Guthrie and Mrs. Lydia Clayton of Sikeston.

In Bloomfield, those attending were: Mrs. William Yeakey and Mrs. Carol Chasteen of Bloomfield; Mrs. Gilbert Spears and Mrs. W. C. Wheeler of Bell City; Mrs. Albert Elfrank and Mrs. Anna Weissenborn of Advance; Mrs. Tony Scheeter of Oran; Mrs. Ernest Wheeler of Gray Ridge; Mrs. Phyllis Dowdy, Mrs. Bama Morgan, Mrs. M. H. Grady, Mrs. Clara Baker and Mrs. Paul Thomason of Dexter; Mrs. Eva Kinkade, Mrs. Dorothy Betsch and Mrs. Roy White of Bernie; and Myrtle Millington of Frisco Friendship Club.

Ann Landers

23-year-old should not have to report to mother

Dear Ann Landers: What do you think of the following situation? Alice was married to Bob for 16 years. They had three children. Bob became involved with a young girl in his office. He divorced Alice in Mexico and married the girl. That marriage lasted two years. The girl divorced Bob for another man. (Younger) The following year Bob married another young bird. He died three months later of a heart attack.

Alice now refers to herself as "a widow." I'd like your comment. ---Watching From The Sidelines.

Dear Watching: I'd say Alice has probably had plenty of heartache in her life and she doesn't need more. If she wants to call herself a widow, I can't see that it's any of my busness. Or yours, either. What's YOUR problem, honey?

Dear Ann Landers: I got married at 19, which was a big mistake. Six months later I was divorced and moved back home.

I'm now 23, have a responsible hob and consider myself reasonably mature. All through high school and college my mother telephoned friends and relatives looking for me if I was fifteen minutes late getting home. It was very embarrassing but there was nothing I could do to stop it. Once she called the Field Museum (I was there with a date) and had me paged. (She wanted to tell me about the storm warnings she had heard on the radio and to be careful.)

Last night I said I'd be home at 10:30. It so happened I met some people and didn't get home until 1:30. She yelled for 30 minutes. I feel that a 23-year- old girl shouldn't need to report to her mother if she decides to change her schedule. If you agree with me please print this letter. --- Distressed In Chicago

Dear Chic: A 23-year- old girl should not need to report to her mother. But she SHOULD know how to use a telephone. What I am suggesting is that you should have been considerate enough to let your mother know when you changed your plans---especially since she is obviously a worrier from way back. Some young adults (both male and female) want the comforts of mama's home and the freedom of living in a hotel, and it just won't work.

Dear Ann Landers; I was not only surprised but disappointed when I read your statement that people in this day and age who have extremely large families are "trying to prove something."

What do you consider an "extremely large family"? Ten children? Eight? Six? Since yo had only one child, maybe you think TWO is "extremely large."

And how nice of you to have offered an explanation for those of us who have "extremely large" families. My husband and I appreciated that very much. You see, we didn't know why we had all these kids. Actually, we thought we loved children, but according to you, that wasn't the reason at all.

I feel you owe an apology to the countless readers who look to you for moral support and guidance and good common sense. You let us down badly with that one. ---Wichita Parents Who Love Them All.

Dear Parents: You are right. My typewriter got ahead of my brain when I pounded out that statement and I am sorry. My apologies to all parents of large families who "love them all."

Don't flunk your chemistry test. Love is more than one set of glands calling to another. If you have trouble making a distinction you need Ann's booklet, "Love Or Sex And How To Tell The Difference." Send a long, self- addressed, stamped envelope with your request and 35 cents in coin to this newspaper.

For the past several weeks, a force of experts including electricians, plumbers, interior decorators and others have been quietly at work in the Hotel Marshall, painting, repapering, laying carpet, replacing obsolete lighting fixtures with modernistic, up-to-date drops and outlets, and moving in new made-to-order furniture in each of the 53 guest rooms and the spacious lobby.

The Prayer from The Upper Room

"Beware of false prophets, who come to you in sheep's clothing but inwardly are ravenous wolves. You will know them by their fruits." [Matthews 7:15-16]

PRAYER: O heavenly Father, all of us have a consecrated mission to bring Your love to all the people we meet anywhere. Help us to be candles of love so that others can find in us the flame with which to warm their lives. Amen.

O'Hara's Life Written For Scholars

O'HARA: A BIOGRAPHY. By Finis Farr. Little, Brown. 300 Pages. $8.50.

When John O'Hara died in 1970 he was one of the nation's most highly respected writers and left behind a formidable quantity of work that lovingly detailed a time and a place in America that, while gone from the contemporary scene, still will exist as long as O'Hara's work is read.

Whether or not O'Hara's peculiar appeal will continue to survive is a matter of conjecture, of course. But it is difficult to imagine a book such as "Appointment in Samara," for example, going without readers.

Regardless, O'Hara did what he had to do and it's summed up nicely on the headstone at his grave: "Better than anyone else, he told the truth about his time, the first half of the twentieth century."

What's the Law?

The case of the wrong number

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Maggie had the only X-rated telephone in town. While Maggie led a serene sort of life, her active telephone didn't. It jingled and jangled at all hours of the day and night with callers who were looking for some "action." It seemed that an advertisement had been placed in a newspaper that invited single adults to meet new people by calling a listed number. And as fate would have it, the newspaper erroneously listed Maggie's number as the one to call.

The result; Maggie received more propositions that a read-headed Hootchy-Kootchy dancer and sued the newspaper for damages.

"It went on for weeks and weeks," she told the judge, "and I became a nervous wreck. The obscenity was unbelievable. And while I frequently couldn't distinguish the callers, I couldn't extinguish them either."

"We're sorry about what happened," responded the newspaper, "but it wasn't our fault. The advertiser accidentally gave us the wrong telephone number. Since the mistake wasn't ours, the liability shouldn't be ours either."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you hold the newspaper liable for the wrong number?

This is how the judge ruled: YES! The judge held that considering the nature of the advertisement in light of the current climate for free expression of sexual feelings, any media of communication that wishes to print or distribute this kind of suggestive advertisement must accept the concomitant burden of verifying any telephone number or address given. What happened to Maggie, concluded the judge, was a foreseeable consequence of a failure to check out the telephone number given.

Food prices to level off soon

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Food prices may decline somewhat from current levels, but probably not before next year, according to the Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis.

Clifton B. Luttrell, the bank's assistant vice president and economist, said in the bank's monthly review that food prices may level off late this spring and remain fairly stable for the rest of the year. But he said food prices probably will not decline much in 1973.

Luttrell said farmers have responded to the higher prices by planning increased production this year. As production increases, he said, "prices may decline from current levels."

Red tape delays flood assistance

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Red tape in state government is being blamed for the delay in getting free mobile homes from the federal government to Missouri Flood victims.

"I know of areas where there are two or three families in a home.. These people are waiting for us to get the red tape cut," said Rep. W. O. "Bob" Howard, D-Elsberry.

The Department of Housing and Urban development (HUD) said Tuesday it has 117 mobile homes stockpiled at Granite City, Ill., but none can be sent to Missouri until the legislature approves money for rental or development of sites.

The House Tuesday gave first round approval to an emergency appropriations measure of $468,000 for the housing, which Lt. Gov. William Phelps said was a "last resort" to help more than 400 families.

Howard said flood victims in Illinois are already moving into emergency homes provided by the federal government.

Paul Wilson, an assistant to Phelps, said the state needs to rent 255 sites and develop another 166. He said the need was most urgent at Hannibal, Ste. Genevive and the Winfield-Foley area.

Phelps' office obtained an attorney general's opinion before going to the House with proposed legislation for the housing.

Rep. James "Jay" Russell, D-Florissant, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, said the legislation "should have been brought over a month ago." He said he thinks there might be more red tape when approval for the mobile homes is sought from municipalities. "We're a month away," Russell said, when asked when the housing might become a realty.

The appropriations still needs approval in the House and then must be approved by the Senate and governor.

Modest buying continues through troubled times

From Crockett Scott

"The devil is the author off confusion."

...Swift

Though the market has been moving through the troubled seas of a faltering dollar, strength in gold, continuing deficits in the balance of payments in international trade, rising inflation and, of course, Watergate, the times continue appropriate (very probably) for modest buying.

Such is the thinking of a great many Middle Mississippi Valley investment banking firms.

The market, many of them believe, has pretty well discounted much of the bad news.

Equity analysts your correspondent has talked with feel that we have got to cool the boom, to some extent, to get the market back on track; and that rising interest rates may do just that.

They may affect, adversely, rising profit margins for many companies too, though numerous analysts concur that rising interest rates probably are not so unwanted as a continuing fast rise in inflation. For inflationary rises in raw materials cannot be passed along to the consumer as fast as the prices for raw materials go up to the manufacturer.

The investor is aware of this, Mid-South equity anlysts observe; as the market indicates. The investor is afraid of the future. Good earnings reports are a fact today, he concedes, but will they be tomorrow?

Looking down the road into late 1973 and early 1974 there are grave doubts.

As countless individual common stocks drift lower, certainly one should be alert to them, SEC-registered representatives tell your correspondent; for they can't continue to descend forever; and the emphatic point is made that those of fair quality or better which have slipped to mere fractions of their former prices have much greater upside potential than downside.

The potential investor is advised by competent professionals that there is and always has been the possibility of making the mistake of waiting too long to commit your money.

Courage and money committed in times of depressed markets have paid off handsomely in times past; the same could be true again.

Chartists who look at the Dow Jones Industrials in the low 900s, in contrast to the ebullient rise beyond the 1050 level a few months back find it difficult not to wax enthusiastically, though some of their number concede that the market could show further vulnerability.

In buying equity in current markets, one certainly should seek to buy issues on the floor, of course, SEC-registered representatives emphasize; — as in down markets such as we have been having, today's low may not mean a thing. Tomorrow a depressed issue could be even lower.

This may be interpreted from SEC-registered counselors as inconsistent; but it is well to remember that the market is indeed inconsistent; one seldom buys at the very bottom or sells at the very top; the investor tries to buy relatively low and sell relatively high.

An example of the vagaries of a particular equity, one believed by many to be near its low is Kaufman & Board, down into the mid-twenties recently from the mid-forties a few months back. Yet Kaufman & Broad dropped five points or so in a single day following critical comment in Barron's about its methods of accounting.

Texas group leads antibusing stand

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A drive to put across the 255member Texas delegation led the way here Tuesday for a strong antibusing stand by the National Parents Teachers Association convention.

The group voted 605 to 353 to approve a legislative proposal opposing "involuntary assignment of students to achieve racial balance.

"A spokesman for the organization noted that the proposal must be ratified by at least 31 state organizations before it becomes part of the national P-TA's legislative policy, but said delegates also approved an antibusing resolution that goes into effect immediately as representing the views of the convention delegates.

The spokesman said the Texas delegation, which made up 20 per cent of the voting delegates, drew support form delegates from Virginia, Florida and Oklahoma, in its drive to put across the antibusing proposals.

The group also acted to elect Mrs. Lillie Herndon of Columbia, S.C., as national president. Mrs. Walter Kimmel of Rock Island, Ill., was chosen first vice president and Dudley E. Flood of Raleigh, N.C., was elected second vice president.

Selected as regional vice presidents were Mrs. Romine Foster of Rushville, N.Y., in Region One; Mrs. Robert E. Reynolds of Williamsport, Pa., in Region Two; Mrs. Sidney R. Raike of Chicago, Region Four, and Mrs. LeRoy Schulenberg of Independence, Mo., in Region Six.

Executive committee has faith in Harding

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The executive committee of the Missouri Baptist Convention has again declared its "complete confidence in the integrity, dedication and character of our executive secretary..." Dr. Earl C. Harding, who has held the post 20 years.

The committee, after meeting Monday to review charges against Harding, said it is ordering another audit, at his request, to cover all funds for 1970, 1971 and 1972.

"It is imperative that our people have these details ... so they may be aware of the harassment he has been subjected to ... over the past several months," the committee said.

The committee's report, issued Tuesday, was the sixth statement in 15 months of its confidence in Harding.

Pressing the charges are Dr. Tom Anderson, mayor and Baptist lay leader in Columbia, and the Rev. James W. Hackney, pastor of the Maplewood Baptist Church near St. Louis.

Hackney was removed as chairman of the executive committee Monday at the request of the other 12 members. The Rev. Frank Myers of Warrensburg, chairman of the convention's executive board, appointed James F. Ford, a lawyer at Kennett, to succeed Hackney.

The executive committee meets each month and oversees the staff and financial affairs, which include a budget of $5.6 million this year.

One of the charges against Harding was that $12,450 was overspent, with the money coming from three different accounts. The executive committee said Harding obtained the committee's permission in advance to reallocate the money and spend it.

Another charge was an alleged kickback on $1,613 worth of work done at Harding's home by R. E. Smith, a St. Louis contractor who had done other work for the convention.

4 injured in 2 accidents

Four persons were injured Tuesday in two traffic accidents in Sikeston.

Three of the four were injured when their car ran into the rear of another on East Malone Avenue about 5:40 p.m.

Treated and released for minor injuries at Missouri Delta Community Hospital were Lonnie Lee Millner, driver of the car; his wife Rose Marie; and another passenger, William Lawrence, all of Alsup Trailer Court in Miner.

According to police, the Millner auto ran into the back of a car driven by Breville M. Freeman, 224 N. Handy. Freeman's car was stopped in the inside westbound lane of East Malone waiting to make a left turn into Baugher's service station when the accident occurred.

One person was injured in an accident at 5:30 p.m. at the intersection of South Main and Virginia streets.

Linda Smith, 26, of 226 Moore Ave. was treated at the hospital for multiple cuts and bruises and a fractured rib after the car in which she was riding struck another car from behind at the intersection.

She was a passenger in a car driven by James Vinson, 309 Branum, which struck a car driven by Gary L. Fox, 321 Virginia. Both cars were traveling south on South Main Street at the time of the accident.

Job information service available

Missouri Division of Employment Security offices are now providing a new feature, job information service, available to all job seekers, and it should have special interest to recent high school and college graduates.

H.D. Lambert, manager of the Sikeston office, said the job information service is a flexible self- service system of exposing job applicants to listings of all current job orders in the Bootheel area and throughout the state. Applicants read the job lists and make their own job selection by means of viewers located in the Sikeston office.

Lambert said the job information service, tested nationally, has operated in Kansas City and St. Louis during the past year with "great success" and is now extended to all offices of the division.

From the information on job listings, applicants can determine the kind of job, experience required, hours of work, salary and the city in which the opening occurs. Employer names are not included. Employment service interviewers will arrange for referrals of those workers who meet the requirements of the job selected.

The job information service works fastest for the worker who knows his skills. Applicants who need more intensive help can receive job finding assistance plus aptitude testing, vocational counseling, information on apprenticeship and training and referral to other community services.

bounting federal revenue sharing funds. Bond had recommended $1.9 billion for the total.

An $87.3 million appropriations bill for capital improvements throughout the state remains to be acted on, but was given tentative approval by the House Tuesday, after nearly three days of debate.

More than $70 million of the bill would come from federal revenue sharing funds.

Rep. James "Jay" Russell, D-Florissant, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee said the House "over spent" the federal funds, by approving an amendment to the committee's version to shift a $6.4 million appropriation for a veterinary complex at the University of Missouri-Columbia from state general revenue to the federal funds.

Russell said the veterinary transfer would mean a deficit of $3 million.

The House also gave first round approval to a bill to provide $468,000 for temporary housing for flood victims. The bill originally called for $750,000, but was amended Tuesday after revised estimates of the money needed were received, Russell said.

The bill sent to the governor by the Senate brings to 30 the number of bills sent to him this session. He has vetoed one, and signed two others.

The Senate gave $161.5 million to higher education, in the eight bill package passed Tuesday. The House had appropriated $168.1 million.

I-SC faces Humansville in opener

COLUMBIA, Mo. — Illmo- Scott City heads into the semifinals of the Missouri high school class A state baseball tournament at Springfield, Mo., this weekend with a 9-2 season record and their sights set on the first class A state title. This is the first year for the two class system.

Coach Bill Wilthong's Rams will face Humansville, 8-6, at 4 p.m. Friday with the winner advancing to the title bout Saturday afternoon at 1:30. Kansas City Pem- Day, with a 14-9 record, goes against StLouis Priory, 12-9, in Friday's 1:30 opener.

Defending state champ, Lafayette, playing in the 2A class this season, failed to make the semifinals. The 2A pairings for Lemay this weekend have St. Joseph Central (20-3) playing Chaminade (15-7) at 1:30 and Fox of Arnold, 10-5, going against Hazelwood, 19-4, at 4 p.m.

Not many people thought that the Rams could get as far as they have but perhaps the Rams themselves. Most of the people that you would talk to figured the strong pitching arms of either, Scott Thomas of Chaffee, Jeff Jackson of Kelly, or Randy Gardner of Hayti, would carry their respective teams into the finals of the State tournament.

No one had paid much attention to the Rams pitching staff, composed of hard throwing lefthander Jim Noon or righthander Don Crews. Noon sports a very respectable 5-2 record with wins over Scott Thomas, Ken Urhahn, and Jeff Jackson this season. Crews has a 3-1 slate, with his latest victory coming at the expense of the Hayti Indians and Randy Gardner in the Regional Saturday.

The Rams are no pushover from the offensive side either as no less than seven of coach Wilthong's nine men are batting at a .300 or better clip. Linn Ward boast of a .460 average.

"We thought we had a chance and everything began to fall in place." Commented a happy coach Wilthong.

The Rams weren't picked to go very far but after upsetting Chaffee and Notre Dame in the District tournament, have beaten Kelly and Hayti to prove that they are no flash in the pan but are a solid baseball team..

"We knew that if our hitting came along that we could play with the other teams in the area," Coach Wilthong said.

The Rams will be taking their 9-3 record into the State semi- finals against Humansville, whom they know nothing about. Humansville is located some 75 miles northwest of Springfield.

Coach Wilthong will send Jim Noon to the mound in the 4:00 p.m. encounter.

"We stand as good a chance as anyone to win the championship. Our boys (Crews and Noon) are capable of pitching with any boys," coach Wilthong continued.

The winner of the Rams game will play the winner of the Kansas City Pem-Day and Priorty game for the State championship, Saturday at 1:30 at Springfield.

At class reunions almost everybody has a gimmick. Try picking the one who doesn't go along.
1. Nope. He's Don Wand. Won school essay contest with "The Art of Pre-Marital Dancing." Gimmick: 200 mm holder to balance his 100 mm cigarette. 2. No. It's Rah-Rah Mendelson, ex-cheerleader. Gimmick: He's wearing it. Smokes whatever he finds in his pouch. 3. No. He's Moe Mentum, alias "Stone Hands" for dropping passes. Just dropped statue of school mascot. 4. T. Deious, school bore. Gimmick: His voice, off-key contralto. Smokes oval cigarettes (he sat on his soft-pack and liked it). 5. Curley Gilroy. His hair was voted "Most Likely to Recede." Gimmick: Staples toupee on. Also staples his roll-your-owns. 6. Right. He's still his own man. Likes his cigarette honest, no-nonsense, too. Camel Filters. One-hitter highlights season opener

The Jr. Babe Ruth season opened Monday with Davis & Bird and Harts recording wins. Davis & Bird defeated Elliot Newton 10-4 while Harts downed IBEW 13-3.

D & B provided solid hitting to back up the pitcher, Keller. The first inning went slow for both teams, but during the second D & B broke loose for four runs to give them the lead which they maintained throughout the entire game. Jackson suffered the loss for Elliott- Newton.

Harts romped over IBEW in the second game. The winning pitcher, Standridge, held the IBEW players to only a single hit. IBEW jumped ahead in the first inning by one run, but could not stop their opponent from going on to score. Picking up three runs in the second, Harts played the field well to hold off any more scoring attacks by IBEW. The losing pitcher was Barnett.

Tuesday night's action was rained out, but will pick up again Thursday night.

Elliott- Newton went down swinging in the Junior Babe Ruth season opener Monday night at VFW stadium, dropping a 10-4 decision to Davis & Bird.

Bean wins

Curtis Bean represented Sikeston in the Missouri Class L outdoor track and field meet Saturday afternoon and came away with a first place prize. Bean repeated as champion in the long jump, getting off a jump of 23 ft., 1½ in. This jump bettered his mark from last year, which was 22-3½.

Bean had a clear field as his competition failed to come within a foot of his jump. His farthest leap this season was during the Conference meet held at Sikeston, which was 23-6.

Several colleges have talked with Bean, but nothing definite has yet been planned.

Poplar Bluff's relay team placed second in the mile to also represent Southeast Missouri. Brad Moore provided an individual fourth place when he ran the quarter - mile with a time of 50 seconds.

HORSE RACING

NEW YORK — Loud, $6.40, surged from last place to snatch the $15,000 Wilson Tech Purse at Belmont.

TUCSON, Ariz. — Rocky Bridges, manager of the Hawaii Islanders of the Pacific Coast League, was fired.

Cards slip past Mets

NEW YORK (AP) — Today's lesson in baseball fundamentals concerns time out and whose responsibility it is to call it.

In the sometimes overly relaxed world of baseball, sometimes it isn't even necessary to officially call time out. It's assumed when a catcher moves out to the pitching mound that time has been called. By somebody. Anybody.

Ted Simmons, a bright young catcher for the St. Louis Cardinals, perched on second base in the seventh inning of what was to develop into a 5-3 victory over the New York Mets Tuesday night. Two straight inning opening singles in a scoreless game had several of the Mets moving toward the mound with some words of consolation for pitcher Jerry Koosman. Here came catcher Duffy Dyer and third baseman Ken Boswell.

"I noticed," said Simmons, "that none of the umpires had their hands up for time out."

"I thought Duffy called time," said Boswell.

"I thought Bozzy called time," said Dyer.

"I think that somebody should have called time," decided Simmons, "but as the baserunner, I really didn't think it was my responsibility."

Evil thoughts began dancing through Simmons' head, all of them concerning third base. "I edged away from the base and looked back to see if Wayne Garrett was holding on me. He had his back turned. He was the last check. If he's next to me, I don't go. But he wasn't so I took off."

Boswell, at third base, was cool about the development. "I wasn't worried," he said. "I knew he would be sent back. I knew Duffy must've called time out."

Guess again.

"I should have called time," said Dyer. "But I didn't. Some umpires do it automatically when the action stops and I'm walking out to the pitcher."

But Rookie umpire Terry Tata wasn't calling it without a formal request. And none of the Mets had bothered with that little detail.

"I didn't say a word to the umpire," said Dyer, "because I knew I didn't call it and I knew Boswell didn't call it."

When did he find out the bad news about Boswell? "When he yelled at me, 'Didn't you call time?'"

Now, instead of runners on first and second and an almost automatic sacrifice situation, the Cards had men on first and third and a few options. Rookie Ken Reitz selected the best one, an RBI-single that gave St. Louis the lead.

A sacrifice and an intentional walk loaded the bases and pitcher Rick Wise followed with a two-run double. Then Lou Brock delivered a two-run single and what had been a scoreless ballgame just moments before, suddenly turned into a 5-0 affair for the Cards.

The Mets scratched one run back in the bottom of the seventh and two more in the ninth on Ed Kranepool's double. But it was a case of too little, too late. Time simply ran out on the Mets. And nobody called for it, either.

Dodger rookie among leaders

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Davey Lopes, the Los Angeles Dodgers' second baseman, has been leading the National League in batting during the early part of the season—a rare feat for a rookie.

But Lopes' record of 17 stolen bases in his first 17 attempts in 39 games was even more unusual. It was one of the best starts ever for a major league base stealer.

Lopes' early big league baserunning exploits easily surpassed those of ex-Dodger Maury Wills, one of the all-time leading base stealers, as well as Lou Brock, Luis Aparicio and Bert Campaneris, the top three active players.

Wills, who set a major league record of 104 stolen bases during the 1962 season, needed 142 games to steal his first 17 bases and was thrown out on three of his first 10 attempts.

Another vaunted Dodger baserunner, Willie Davis, stole only three bases in 22 games and was thrown out five times in his first year with the club.

Campaneris stole only 10 bases in 67 games in his rookie year with the then Kansas City Athletics in 1964. Aparicio had 21 in 152 games with the Chicago White Sox in 1956, and Brock was safe on 16 of 23 attempts in his first 127 games.

The 27-year-old Lopes, whose name is pronounced like "ropes," says he uses good acceleration and studies the pitchers.

More vocal in explaining the 5-foot-9, 170-pounder's fast start is Tom Lasorda, who managed the Dodgers' Pacific Coast League farm club at Albuquerque where last year Lopes stole 48 bases and hit .317.

"What people don't remember about him is that in stealing 48 bases he also missed 40 games due to military leaves and other things. If he doesn't miss 40 games, which hurts his timing, he steals 75 bases at least," said Lasorda, now a Dodger coach.

Drivers pick Indy favorites

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — There is no pari-mutuel betting in auto racing, but if there was pole-sitter Johnny Rutherford would be no better than a 6-to-1 chance to win Monday's Indianapolis 500.

Some friendly odds-makers, including one or two of the participants themselves, got together in the Speedway garage area Tuesday and rated each driver in the 33-car starting field.

When the session was over, 1972 winner Mark Donohue and 11th place starter Gordon Johncock had been made the co-favorites at odds of 4-1. Bobby Unser, Swede Savage, Gary Bettenhausen and Al Unser were rated 5-1.

Surprisingly, the only other driver listed at 6-1 besides Rutherford was four-time winner A. J. Foyt. The forecasters, taking into account the Texan's ability to charge, figured he'd sit in his 23rd starting spot just long enough to get his CoyoteFoyt warmed up.

Rutherford, 35, from Fort Worth, Tex., was the fastest qualifier with a four-lap speed of 198.413 miles per hour.

Rutherford started in the front row once before, in 1970, but was felled by engine trouble after 138 laps. His best finish ever was 17th in 1969.

Among drivers rated 7-1 were Mike Mosley, a crash victim his last two starts in the 500, and Peter Revson, who is Rutherford's teammate. Mosley starts 21st, Revson 10th.

Braves sign DiGregorio

BUFFALO (AP) — Ernie DiGregorio, the All-American basketball guard from Providence College, could become a millionaire today.

The Buffalo Braves of the National Basketball Association figured it would take at least $1 million to lure DiGregorio from the Kentucky Colonels of the American Basketball Association.

The Braves and the Colonels each made the 6-foot star their No. 1 pick in the rival leagues' draft of college players.

Buffalo called a news conference to announce DiGregorio's signing of a multi-year contract.

Soon after the Braves selected DiGregorio, requests for season tickets poured in. Fans openly admitted they looked forward to seeing the ball-handling wizard working with Buffalo's front line of 7-foot center Elmore Smith, veteran forward Bob Kauffman, 6-8, and rookieof-the-year forward Bob McAdoo, 6-10.

In three years at Providence, DiGregorio scored 1,760 points for an average of 20.5 and finished with 527 assists in 86 games, a Friars' record.

DiGregorio helped carry Providence to a 23-2 regular season record and into the 197273 NCAA playoffs. The Friars won the NCAA Eastern title with a 103-89 victory over Maryland.

Recently, he led the United States team to a 4-2 series victory over a touring Russian squad. He averaged 18.6 points per game and scored 25 in the final meeting as the U.S. posted an 89-80 overtime victory over the Soviets.

CHICAGO — The formation of a professional tennis league, World Team Tennis, was announced and George MacCall, nonplaying captain of three U.S. Davis Cup teams, was named commissioner.

Dear Mr. Blanton:

We would appreciate your printing the enclosed letter as an open letter to Kenneth Dement in your "letter to the Editor" section.

Thank you.

The Sikeston Police Department

TODAY IS MAY 16, 1973.... ANOTHER BEAUTIFUL DAY IN SIKESTON, MISSOURI

Mr. Kenneth Dement
310 W. North
Sikeston, Missouri 63801

Dear Kenny:

The City of Sikeston is losing a most excellent City Attorney in losing you.

The Sikeston Police Department wants to take this opportunity to express their appreciation for your legal services during the past year you have served as City Attorney. The Department feels that they had in you a strictly impartial representative for cases brought before Municipal Court. You were always honest and fair -- by that we mean that you stood up for a Policeman if you felt he was correct in an arrest and, likewise, you stated so if you thought the law officer was in error.

We as a Department take this opportunity to say "Thanks for your support of a Department that is in earnest in its efforts to provide law and order in the City of Sikeston".

Sincerely,
THE SIKESTON POLICE DEPARTMENT

Dear Mr. Blanton:

Would you please print this letter of thanks to the following firms of Sikeston for making it possible for our fourth grade class to visit their businesses and see how they work:

To the Sikeston Concrete Products Company and Mr. and Mrs. Dale Ham for friendly welcome and getting to see the computer work, also for the pencils.

To Malone & Hyde for allowing us to visit their construction site for their new refrigeration building and seeing the steel support beams for the ceiling being placed by the big crane.

To the McMullin Asphalt Company for allowing us to tour their plant, although we were sorry and disappointed that they were not in operation due to a technical difficulty.

And last but not least to Mr. Ray Clinton for making these visits possible and for the treat for the children at his office.

Sincerely,
Mrs. W. W. Wilkison

Mr. C. L. Blanton, Jr.
Standard
Sikeston, Missouri

Dear Mr. Blanton:

I take this means of thanking all of the news media for the excellent news and editorial coverage on my Right to Work Bills, HB No. 24 and HJR No. 2.

It is now obvious that the Chairman of both the Labor and Constitutional Amendments Committees are being pressured to delay committee vote on these bills. The union bosses have proven their clout within your state legislature. What has happened to government of, by and for the people -- ALL of the people, not just the union czars and their knee jerk followers?

I originally prepared these bills because I was concerned about Missouri's loss of industry to Right to Work states. Having seen the caliber of opposition to these bills I am all the more convinced that Missouri needs a Right to Work law to give the workers some protection from their own leaders.

I assure you this is only the beginning, not the end of my efforts for a Right to Work law for Missouri.

Again, I appreciate the efforts of a free press in behalf of freedom of choice for Missouri's labor force.

Sincerely,
Vic Downing

The ultimate in court reform

The statewide court reform plan proposed by a special committee of the Missouri Bar Association cuts through the confusing layers of judicial bureaucracy to attack the cancer that infects the system. And it does it with such a clean, simple surgical procedure that one can only wonder why the operation has not been performed before.

The proposed court reform is an elementary one yet majestic and sweeping in its impact: All nonfederal judges in the state would become part of the state's circuit court system.

Gone would be 114 probate, 100- plus magistrate, and 400 municipal court judges throughout the state — including the courts of common pleas and the scandal- filled St. Louis Court of Criminal correction and City Courts. Gone would be the patronage offices existing under court clerks like James P. Lavin. Gone would be the George Cadys and Nathan Youngs selected by city officials. Gone would be the needless reviews because lower courts are not courts of record. Gone would be political influences.

Ushered in would be a simple three- tier court system for the whole state, consisting of the Supreme Court, Courts of Appeal, and Circuit Courts. Ushered in would be the nonpartisan "Missouri Plan" for the selection of all judges by the governor from lists submitted by a commission, and the retention of judges through the procedure of running against their record.

All current full- time judges and commissioners who are lawyers would be brought into the new system through elevation to Circuit Court judge status, and upon completion of their normal term would be retained or dismissed by a new judicial council composed of judges.

All courts would be courts of record under the new system, eliminating the need for a new trial when a case is appealed from a municipal or magistrate court. Yet the appeals courts would review Circuit Court decisions for possible judicial error.

The Circuit Court concept will allow considerable leeway in transferring cases and judges from say, juvenile to domestic relations matters when caseloads warrant. All judges would be under the mandatory retirement age of 70, instead of just the nonpartisan- plan judges as at present.

The judges would have direct control of court personnel, eliminating the patronage appointments and hacks that now undermine the court system. Any judges accused of irregularities would be subject to investigation and censure by the state Supreme Court and Judicial Commission.

Fines in Circuit Court resulting from violations of municipal ordinances would continue to go to municipal coffers, thus eliminating a possible major objection. Other objections can be expected from the incompetent court personnel who owe their positions to cronyism and from the non- lawyers who now serve as judges (a 1971 survey should that 361 of 330 municipal judges were non-lawyers). Both groups would get the heave- ho under the system, as well they should.

Making every city, town, county and state court in the state into a Circuit Court won't be an instant panacea, but the move would be a great step forward and would prove increasingly valuable as the years and current judges pass by. Court loads would be lessened and could be much better distributed; silly reviews now required only because of a loophole would be eliminated; the court system would be vastly upgraded in talent and prestige as well as in scrutiny and impartial administration of justice.

The next step for the plan, approved 17-1 by the Courts Modernization Committee of the Missouri Bar, will be discussion by the bar's board of governers in July. Then the proposed change to the Judicial Article of the state constitution would be either presented to the General Assembly for approval to be placed on the ballot, or be placed on the ballot directly through an initiative petition drive.

Given the realities of the legislators' penchant in Jefferson City for chopping up and whittling away at a work of art until it looks like a caricature, the initiative petition is probably the better although more tedious route.

The current proposal is a work of art — ridiculously uncomplicated yet extraordinarily profound. The shocking abuses in St. Louis courts, which aldermen refused to correct and which statutes seem inadequate to deal with, would be much less likely under the statewide nonpartisan court reform!

Real estate is good investment

If a family has trouble saving money, the Sikeston Board of Realtors advises they make their biggest lifetime expenditure and buy real estate.

The paradoxical, but sound, counsel is offered by the Realtors who are currently celebrating national Realtor Week.

The Sikeston board points out that buying a home is one of the best investments a family can make. "It's a built-in savings account when savings are hardest to put aside," notes Jeanette Waldman, president of the Sikeston board.

Realtors cite from their experience that house payments are one "sure source of savings" which are more systematically maintained than any other form of payment. "There are always new shoes to buy, dentist bills to pay and tires needed on the car but, in the minds of most families, these expenses come after the house payment," Mrs. Waldman noted.

Realtors, licensed brokers who adhere to a stringent code of ethics as members of state and local boards of the National Association of Realtors, are quick to point out that the practical reason for buying a home is only partly the high rate of return when a home is sold on money funneled into mortgage payments. "The increase in value of the average home, coupled with income tax deductions, provide a compelling reason for families to invest their money in home ownership," said Mrs. Waldman.

To further illustrate the sound economics of owning a home, the Sikeston board provides the following example of owning a "typical" home – a $25,000 house financed under a 30- year Federal Housing Administration loan at a 7½ per cent interest rate – and the money saved in one year.

Assuming FHA appraises the house as worth every cent, a family may receive maximum financing of $23,050, which amounts to a $1,950 down payment plus closing costs. The FHA monthly payment, including mortgage insurance, would come to $178.09. To that would be added taxes and insurance of roughly $50.00. Total payments, according to the board's example, would amount to $228.09 a month.

Of that total payment, $20.26 will actually go toward paying off the loan. While it does not sound like much, the amount going into equity increases by 11 cents each month. By the year's end, it totals $244.54.

Realtors point out that increases in property values during the past several years have averaged from 3 to 5 per cent annually, sometimes more. Based on a conservative 3 per cent increase in value, the home has appreciated by $750 in one year.

"Add that to the $244.54, and the cash value of the investment has risen to $944.54, and there's more. Taxes and interest are deductible from income tax," Mrs. Waldman explained.

According to the Sikeston board, an arbitrary but reasonable figure for taxes can be set at $500. Interest per month is $144.06, reducing each month by 11 cents as the balance goes down. That comes to $1,727.40. Assuming a family is in the 20 per cent tax bracket, which is average, the refund from that income tax deduction would be 20 per cent of $1,727.40, or $345.48.

The actual savings, note area Realtors, is $111.67 per month. Deducted from a monthly payment of $228.09, and it's actually costing $116.42 per month to live in a $25,000 house.

"If the same money went into an investment for a 5 per cent return, it would earn only $120 in a year, taxed as income," said Mrs. Waldman. "Each month and each year, the built- in savings account mounts, with an unbeatable 'interest rate' of increases in property values coupled with income tax deductions."

Gold again moves up

LONDON (AP) — The U.S. dollar rallied in early trading in Europe today for the second day in a row. Gold inched back up toward record highs.

Dealers cautioned that trading volume was light and some price swings were erratic, with the markets reportedly nervous about how the Watergate scandal would affect confidence in the dollar. The U.S. currency sank to record lows in Europe on Monday.

Local men attend banking session

MEMPHIS — Jim Ramsey and Alan Bryant of First National Bank and Bill Waltrip and Louis Farris of Security National Bank of Sikeston, Mo., are among 136 students attending a one- week session of the Memphis School of Banking at Memphis State University this week, according to Dr. Peter Freund, chairman of the MSU department of finance, insurance and real estate.

"There are other schools of banking designed to provide the banker with a bridge between the college campus and graduate banking schools," said Dr. Freund "but to our knowledge MSB is the only such school that is co-sponsored by a university and the American Institute of Banking."

The Memphis chapter of the AIB and MSU's College of Business Administration established MSB in 1971 with the first session of classes held in April 1972. Course work is aimed at providing specialized middle management personnel with a broader understanding of all major facets of commercial banking.

Specialists in bank and finance from all areas of the country conduct classes in loans, operation, monetary economics and investments and retailing for first year students and long- range planning, international economics, bank law, trusts, personnel, advanced loans and current banking developments for second year students.

Handicraft shop will open soon

An American Handicraft Store will open soon at 522 Greer St., providing a wide variety of craft kits and craft supplies for hobbyists.

The store is owned by J. B. Crouthers and will be managed by Mike Fansler. American Handicraft is a nationwide chain in 42 states. Crouthers has an exclusive franchise in Sikeston and Cape Girardeau, although the Cape Girardeau store is not established yet. It took Crouthers four years to get the franchise.

The shop offers such items as candle kits, glass cutting sets, macrame necessities, paints, canvasses, wood supplies to be decorated, and much more. The store also carries Grumbacher paints which are difficult to find, Fansler said.

When a person buys something at the store, his or her name is put on a list and sent to the company's main office. The person then receives monthly a copy of the American Handicraft magazine about the newest craft articles and kits which may be ordered.

Rodger Lambert records new song

By PAT GROJEAN

"The third time's charm" may be an old wives' tale, but Rodger Lambert of East Prairie and his manager John Hooper of Sikeston are hoping it holds true for Lambert's recently released record, "Long Summer Days."

"Long Summer Days" is Lambert's third record in the 18 years he has been singing and five years he has been recording. The record was pressed and released early this month and seems to be doing well. Lambert and Hooper hope it will hit the top tunes charts.

"Only one out of every 240,000 records hits the charts," Hooper said. He added that there are lots of uses for records that don't hit the charts, like soundtracks for movies.

Lambert's history with previous records has been one of just breaking even. He hopes to do better on this one.

Both Hooper and Lambert suggested that anyone who doesn't have other gainful employment shouldn't attempt to break into the recording business.

"Long Summer Days" is a true song composed by Lambert about himself. All of Lambert's recorded songs have been self- composed.

"The new song is based on the idea that when a person gets older and thinks back on his childhood, he would like to bring back some of the carefree times that are gone forever," Lambert said, then added that the song is about "just growing up."

This new record is a bit unusual, Hooper said, because each side of the record features a different type of music. The flip side of "Long Summer Days," called "Once in a Lifetime", is a "pop" style number which would appeal to the younger generation.

"Long Summer Days" caters to music lovers in general, Lambert said. Disc jockeys refer to it as middle of the road music, which can be considered either rock or country.

Lambert recorded his first song five years ago, titled "The Drifter". The second one, "Ain't No Woman", was pressed two and one-half years ago.

Most of Lambert's music has been "middle of the road", although "Ain't No Woman" was country and "Once in a Lifetime" is rock. "These were just experiments", Lambert said.

Hooper has been managing Lambert for only a short time. They met during a recording session at Bertrand Sound Studio.

Lambert says that having a manager leaves him free to concentrate on writing and composing songs. "I don't have to worry about the distribution any more," he said.

Hooper had never managed a singer before but said it isn't must different from his current job as assistant manager of a Sikeston department store.

Lambert writes his own music and lyrics, using a guitar to compose the tune. He plays by ear, having never had a music lesson.

"I have always just made up songs," he said, "I have songs that aren't even written down."

Lambert has been making up songs since he was nine years old, but has been doing serious writing for only about six or seven years, he said.

He does his best writing at 1 or 2 a.m. "That's when it's most quiet and I can concentrate," he said. He prefers to be by himself while composing.

How does a song become a song? Lambert said the melody comes first, then he experiments to find something he likes.

"Lyrics are just an inspiration," Lambert said. Not all are written from personal experiences like "Long Summer Days".

It took him just 20 minutes to write the lyrics for his first recorded song, but this is unusual, he added.

Hooper said that, with Lambert's songs, everything is 100 per cent original. He does not try to imitate anyone else's style, nor does he perform songs others have recorded. Lambert said a person needs to "do his own thing" in the music business.

"Long Summer Days" was changed four times before it was finally ready to be pressed.

"It takes time to work it out with everyone involved," said Lambert, who tells musicians to do their own thing, but follow a basic melody.

To record "Long Summer Days", he used the musicians at the recording studio, all of whom play by ear.

Lambert worked on the song about one and one-half months to get the music and lyrics just as he wanted.

It took from 7 p.m. to midnight one day and two hours the next day to record "Long Summer Days".

Terry Bowling and his wife Debbie of Bertrand accompanied Lambert.

The song was recorded in stereo, but sounds different on radio because radios play in mono.

At the studio, a song is recorded on four channels. One instrument is played on channel one, another on channel two and Lambert sings on channel three. Channel four is left open. Then the recording is run through the control panel again and Lambert sings again along with it on the fourth channel.

Lambert says it pays to go in and make a tape first and listen to it for a time before recording it to be sure it is like he wants it.

Both Hooper and Lambert stressed the importance of choosing the right time to release a record. The song should be matched with the season it refers to and be released before that season starts, so it can be well established when the season begins.

After a song is recorded, it must get air time to have a chance to become popular. Hooper sends records to radio stations and attends to any other possible means of booking.

"This is where a person with a manager has a better chance," Hooper said. He added, "This is tough -- I guarantee it's double tough."

Hooper said they try to go 150 miles a week in distribution and that usually about one third of all records pressed are given away. The basic mailing list is made up of 13 states. Hooper said that usually 1,500 records are pressed to start with because this number will usually allow a person to break even.

The new record currently is getting air time in Memphis, St. Louis, Anna, Ill., and around the Bootheel area.

"How well a record sells depends on the air time," Hooper said. "There is such a thing as too much air time, too.

If a radio station is giving the record too much air time, Hooper calls the station and asks them to slack off. "Once every two hours is good enough," he said.

How do they know how much air time a record is getting? Traveling salesmen and people in the area tell Hooper and Lambert.

The record is currently on sale in stores in Sikeston and Cape Girardeau as well as surrounding towns. It was given to the stores on a consignment basis, which means that if the store sells the record, they pay for them, if not Hooper will pick up the records.

Hooper says that if they can average five records sold for each store a week, they're doing well; and "Long Summer Days" is doing it.

Hooper said they're not trying for the clubgoer image. They would like to cater more to civic organization functions. He added that the clubgoers are not the record buyers.

The big money is not in records, but in personal appearances, stated Lambert, who did make some personal appearances with his first song.

When making a personal appearance now, he will have band accompaniment and other singers. The performance provides music for everyone.

Hooper warned that people cannot expect a personal appearance to sound like records, although it does resemble it. Lambert had a group of his own at one time, beginning when he was 16. The group was together for about four years and performed many of Lambert's own songs.

Lambert said that his favorite recording artist is Mac Davis, because he has his own style.

Discussing business plans

Rodger Lambert of East Prairie, right, and his manager John Hooper of Sikeston discuss further plans for Lambert's new record, "Long Summer Days," Which was released about two weeks ago. It is Lambert's third recorded song, and is based on his own experiences. Lambert writes his own songs and lyrics.

Wal-Mart Stores report record 1st quarter sales

BENTONVILLE, Ark. — Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. has reported a 53 per cent gain in net income on sales that increased 56 per cent during the first quarter which ended April 30.

The increase in per share earnings is not in direct proportion to the increase in net income due to the additional number of shares outstanding during the period.

Sales in the three months ending April 30 amounted to $32.7 million, compared to $21 million for the like period of 1972.

Since Feb. 1, Wal-Mart has added five new stores and enlarged one existing store. Springtime Recipe From Italy

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

When it's springtime in Italy cooks are likely to make yeast fritters that hail from Milan. For grownups the fritters may be served with coffee or muscatel; for youngsters the fritters may be offered with milk or hot chocolate. Sprinkled with powdered sugar and served warm, these fritters have a breadlike texture that's chewy. They remind us of a Georgia specialty called, of all things, Tough Bread!

MILANESE FRITTERS

4 cups unsifted flour
1/3 cup sugar
2 packages active dry yeast
1 tablespoon grated lemon rind
1 cup milk
1/2 cup water
2 eggs, at room temperature
1 teaspoon rum extract
Peanut oil
Confectioners' sugar

In a large mixing bowl thoroughly stir together 1 1/3 cups flour, sugar, undissolved yeast and grated lemon rind.

In a small saucepan over low heat, heat the milk and water until warm. Gradually add to flour mixture and at medium speed of electric mixer, scraping bowl occasionally, beat for 2 minutes. Add eggs, rum extract and 1/2 cup flour or enough flour to make a thick batter. Beat at high speed, scraping bowl occasionally, for 2 minutes. Stir in enough additional flour to make a stiff batter. Cover and let stand at room temperature for 15 minutes.

Meanwhile in a large heavy pot, heat peanut oil (enough for deep-fat frying) to 375 degrees.

Stir batter before using. Drop by heaping tablespoonfuls into hot oil and fry until golden-brown on both sides — about 3 minutes. Drain on absorbent paper.

Sprinkle with confectioners' sugar and serve warm.

Makes 3 dozen.

COOKING-UP with judy

Well, readers, since summer is upon us and the outdoor grills can be smelled by kids at the end of the block, the thought of easy salads comes to mind to be served with those wonderful charcoal-broiled steaks, chops, or whatever. Remember to balance out the meals with greens and vegetables. The recipes are provided by Helon Myrick, Bell City High School home economics teacher.

Also included in the column are a quick casserole for hot, tiring days and an apple cake utilizing fresh apples. It's nutritious and delicious.

Happy cookouts.

J.S.

GERMAN MACARONI SALAD

6 weiners, sliced crosswise
1 tbsp. butter or oleo, melted

¼ cup pea liquid
1 7-oz. pkg. macaroni, cooked and drained

Saute' weiner slices in butter until lightly browned. Stir in flour mixed with sugar, salt and minced onion. Gradually blend in vinegar and pea liquid.

Cook over low heat, stirring frequently until thickened and smooth.

Pour over peas and macaroni. Toss lightly to coat. Serve at once.

DUMP SALAD

2 cups cool whip
1-cup can pineapple tidbits, drained
1-cup can mandarin orange sections, drained

May be kept in refrigerator for several days.

1 cup boiling water
1 cup fruit juice
1 pt. orange sherbet
1-cup can mandarin oranges

Serve on lettuce leaves as salad or in dishes as fruit cups.

Coffee Corner by Cherie

How often I've argued with people when the same old topic "what's wrong with today's youth?" has come up and they've said it's the parents. "It's not," I cried out, "I know too many parents who've lived a good life, done nothing wrong, and yet had some pretty rough problems with their kids — you can't blame them!!", and I still feel that I'm right. However, due to a recent experience I've had, I've found there is more to being a good parent than just being a good person; and I feel I've discovered an area where I've failed as a parent and quite a few along with me.

I volunteered Charles and myself for the job of being the leaders in May of our church's youth group held each Sunday evening. When out time arrived, the attendance had fallen down from around forty members to two, so it was with heart in mouth and many misgivings that I lined up to take my turn. In fact, attendance was so low, and May being such a bad month what with Mothers Day, Graduation, Memorial Day, and all that, that the church even offered to just stop the group a month early and forget it. I have to be honest, I was very sorely tempted to take them up on this offer, but do it I'd said, and do it I'd try! Now, why did I bother? Well, I really think because as a child it had been drummed into me that anytime you say you'll do something — you do it! You don't look for an easy out, and no matter how big a job you're saddled with, if you took it on it was your baby! This, is where we as parents are failing our children today drastically! we are not drumming into their heads any sense of responsibility to others or even to themselves. This I found out when I began working with these children, (and I have been just as guilty as the next fella on this count). I called each child and parent and was so sorry (I've done the same thing — my pot is just as black as their kettle), to find that lots of parents felt like if the kids didn't want to go they shouldn't have to bother. Well, this is fine, except that lots of times when we're made to do something, like our parents made you and I do it, we find when we go and do this thing we've enjoyed it as well as gotten quite a bit from it. Now, I don't expect any child to come to a program I'm going to put on and suddenly feel the Grace of God enter into him and alter his life forever; but, I do feel that he might come and gain a little bit of something good through my feeble endeavors — at least I'll not be going to harm them and that's more than can be said from some of the movies they might attend instead. I feel that we do need to push our children in right directions, and then when pushed there, we have to keep right on pushing. When they've got to be some place at a certain time — then we must see that they are there, when they're given tickets to sell — then we must see that they do sell them, or food to bring — then we must see that its brought. Perhaps you're saying if we have to push that hard and end up doing most of their work ourselves what good does it do them? The good it does is that it teaches them you get done what you are suppose to do — it drums responsibility into their heads eventually, just as it was drummed into your head and mine. Children are born like Adam and Eve, into a beautiful garden with good things to eat and fun and play as the order of the day; but unfortunately when Adam and Eve ate of that apple the "good life" was over and "real life" handed to them at once. Our children can only stay young and in that Garden atmosphere a very short time and we must early prepare them for the time when they too, must eat of the apple and be thrown out into the world to make their own way. I feel that if we insist our kids take an active part in their church activities, scouts, etc., then we must make sure it is an active part they do take. It does the child no good if the leader is the one that ends up being saddled with all the jobs; and pretty soon we're going to find none of these activities will even be available because no one will volunteer to be one of these leaders considering the fact that they get no cooperations from anyone or any help and end up simply being frustrated by the whole affair.

Charles and I are really having fun with these kids, and I wouldn't trade this experience for the world because it has really shown me where one of my weaknesses as a mother lies. Kids are great, don't ever think they're not, and they're lots of kicks to be with, but they are inclined to want to "dance to the Piper without paying for the tune", and that's where our jobs lie, in teaching them that music, like life, is not free!

Add a little olive oil, lemon juice and garlic salt to yogurt; use as a dressing for sliced cucumbers. Mix the dressing in an electric blender.

To serve over broiled chicken breasts, make a cream sauce and add seedless grapes.

Make sandwiches of thinly sliced boiled ham and Swiss cheese; butter outside of sandwiches on both sides and grill. Good for lunch with a green salad.

On 'zero-based' budgeting bill

Democrats begin move to override veto

Bulletin

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — An attempt to override a veto by Gov. Christopher S. Bond of the so-called "zero base" budgeting bill failed in the Missouri House today. The vote was 95-64.

Bond vetoed the bill April 5 after it had been passed overwhelmingly by the Senate and House. The Senate later overrode the veto but the House delayed in its attempt because it could not muster the ncessary two-thirds vote, which would have required 109 votes.

The strategy to attempt the override was discussed Tuesday afternoon in a caucus of Democratic House members.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Missouri House Democrats began a move today to override the governor's veto of a so-called "zero base" budgeting bill that would revamp the state's budgeting system.

Gov. Christopher S. Bond vetoed the bill April 5.

The stragegy for the override was discussed Tuesday afternoon in a Democratic caucus.

The Senate overode the veto 25-7 on April 5 but the House Democrats delayed because of solidarity among the GOP ranks. The House has 97 Democrats and 66 Republicans. A two-thirds vote is necessary for the override-- which means 112 votes.

The bill was passed by the House 148-7 and by the Senate 25-1 in March. It was the first to be sent to the governor this session.

The bill requires detailed information on appropriations from department heads, down to the nearest $50 of miscellaneous expenditures.

Departments, each four years, would start from zero when they requested money.

Under current practice, agency heads merely justify requests for increases in lump sum appropriations. A similar measure has been written into the House substitute for the Senate reorganization bill now before a conference committee.

Gov. Bond said the bill was too rigid in that it "compels the use of an inflexible classification of expenditures" not appropriate to certain institutions.

Also, Bond said, the bill failed to require that the judicial branch and the legislature provide the same information when those two branches seek appropriations.

Bond says the legislature already has the power to gain more detailed information on a "zero base."

The action came after the Senate plowed through eight appropriations bills Tuesday, approving expenditures totaling $903 million from general revenue (state taxes) for the 1973-74 fiscal year.

Tuesday night, the Senate House conference committee met for the first time to work out differences in two bills to reorganize the executive branch of government.

The committee ended the first session by agreeing to establish a four-man subcommittee to reduce the possibility of disagreement between the five senators and five representatives.

The subcommittee members, one from each party in both houses, are Sen. William J. Cason, D-Clinton, Sen. Richard M. Webster, R-Carthage, Rep. Joe Holt, D-Fulton, and Rep. Robert O. Snyder, R-Kirkwood.

Noticeable absent from the subcommittee is Rep. Harold Volkmer, D-Hannibal, sponsor of the House reorganization bill and a leading advocate of the type transfer method of reorganization.

Volkmer has also led the criticism of the Senate version of reorganization.

Before voting to set up the subcommittee, which excluded Volkmer, the committee members discussed the major problem areas between the House and Senate versions of the legislation.

Voters approved reorganization in a Constitutional amendment in August. They left the details up to the legislature which must come up with legislation by June 15, or the governor can take action by executive order subject to legislative approval.

Just exactly how the legislature will accomplish the task of reorganizing 440 separate programs into 13 departments and the office of administration has taken both houses until now to come up with two vastly different methods.

The Senate approved a 238-page bill detailing many of the changes after trimming their original bill from over 500 pages.

The House approved a bill which sets out the types of authority and responsibilities that new dapartments will have over their agencies but leaves many of the details to be worked out later either by administrative process or revision legislation in later sessions.

The final House bill was about 50 pages.

Senate conferees agreed Tuesday night to allow eight of the 13 new departments to be reorganized by the House type transfer method.

But they withheld approval on the key matter — how much authority will be transferred to the eight departments.

The action means the method of reorganizing all 13 departments is still in question.

The subcommittee will meet today in an attempt to agree on the wording of the transfers delegating the reorganized authority to the new departments.

The House bill has three basic types of transfers.

The subcommittee will then meet tonight with the entire conference committee before working on other parts of the bill.

Perhaps the most significant difference between the two houses concerns the question of senatorial power of advice and consent over the governor's appointments.

Discussion during the first meeting Tuesday night indicated this question will be the subject of major debate in the committee.

Generally, Senate members want to retain the advice and consent they now have. House members think that power is too broad and will act to disrupt effective administration under the new system which attempts to set up a clear line of authority from the governor down.

Among other differences discussed were the salaries to be paid to the new department directors. The Senate version says $30,000 each except for the Director of Mental Health who will get $35,000.

Earlier the Senate approved eight appropriations bills totaling $903 million for the 1973-74 fiscal year.

Seven of the bills were returned to the House after being amended by the Senate, and a $4.4 million bill to pay for operation costs for the legislature was sent to Gov. Christopher S. Bond for his signature.

The total state budget will run over $2 billion,

Flippo returned to jail

Thomas Flippo, a former Sikeston resident who has been living in Holland, Mich., since his escape from jail over a month ago on bogus check charges, was recommitted to jail Tuesday in Magistrate Court on the order of Judge Lloyd Briggs.

Flippo was recaptured last week in Stoddard county after returning to visit his wife. He now faces another charge of passing bogus checks. Judge Briggs gave him two weeks to find an attorney.

Bogus check charges against Rex Holland of the Holland Stave Co. in Doniphan were dismissed on payment of restitution. Holland was charged with passing a $150 bogus check at Sikeston IGA Foodliner.

Bogus check charges against Willie Partee of Lilbourn were dismissed on payment of restitution. He was charged with passing a $37 bogus check at the J. C. Penny Co. store in Sikeston.

Bogus check charges against Rex Allen Gardner, 702 Montgomery, were dismisseed on payment of restitution. Gardner was charged with passing a $7 bogus check at the Safeway store in Sikeston.

Jackie Wayne Mayberry of Scott City was placed on two-year probation for the April 20 burglary of $500 worth of tires from the St. Louis Southwestern Railway Co.

Larry Joe Vinson was placed on two- year probation for the April 16 burglary of $500 worth of household goods from the Phyllis Jones residence of Benton Route One.

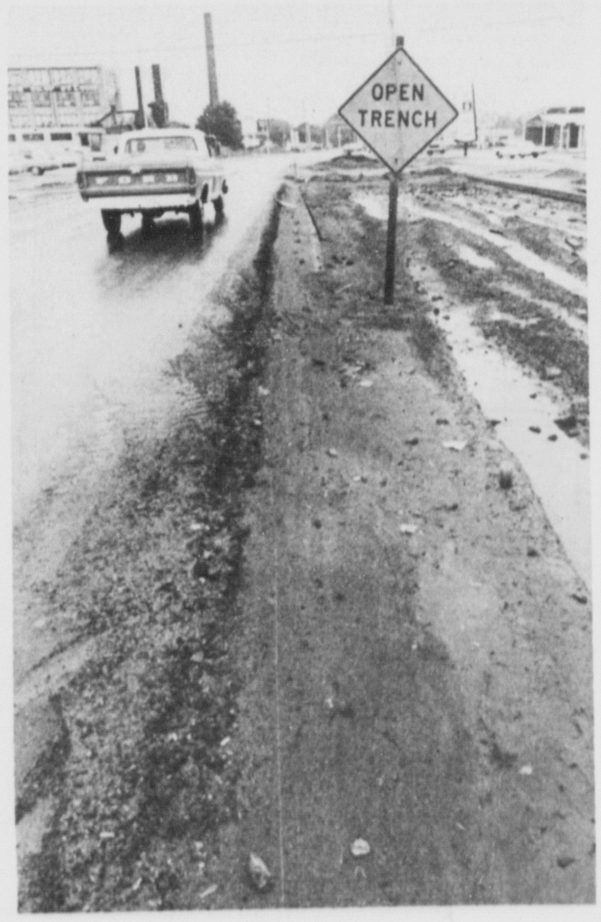
Sentencing was deferred until July 24 for three young men who are trying to enlist in military service. They are Edward Hobgood of Bernie, charged with car theft; Richy Ayers of Bernie, charged with car theft; and Mike Jennings of Bernie, charged with the Jan. 1 burglary of $325 worth of goods from Satterfield's Auto Repair Shop.

The military services are reluctant to accept persons with police records, so the court will defer sentencing to give the three a chance to get into the service. If they are successful, charges will be dropped. Assistant prosecuting attorney Steve Taylor said if the men fail to stay in service, the charges could be refiled.

Countdown begins today

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The countdown started today for man's first space salvage operation, with astronauts and space officials confident they can repair the crippled orbiting Skylab and complete a 28-day flight.

Launch crews began the count on schedule at 5:30 a.m. EDT as they fed electrical power to the Saturn 1B rocket and astronauts' Apollo ferry ship. Planned liftoff time is 9 a.m. EDT Friday.



Street is dangerous

Uncompleted work on the Main Street widening project has left open ditches along the sides of the road and problems for drivers trying to cross the ditches from side streets to get onto the highway. The top photo looks south along South Main near Matthews Avenue, the bottom photo looks north. Girardeau Contractors, Inc., in charge of the project, says work cannot resume until the ground has dried out.

Bloomfield ok's school bonds

BLOOMFIELD— Voters approved a $300,000 bond issue Tuesday by a lopsided 510- 79 margin to finance improvements in the Bloomfield R- 14 School District.

The bond issue will pay for the installation of a standby heating system for use when natural gas supplies are cut off during cold weather. Gas cutback last winter forced the school to close several times.

Funds for the purchase of at least three buses to replace older buses and provide better transportation and lower maintenance costs were included in the bond proposal.

Four elementary classrooms for children with learning disabilities will be constructed and space for the library and art department will be added to the high school with funds from the bonds.

The bond issue will also provide new roofing and roof repairs for all buildings,covered walkways between buildings, new lighting for both the high school and elementary buildings, furnishings and equipment for the new facilities, parking and playground equipment and the purchase of additional land for later expansion.

The bond proposal will not increase the school tax levy, according to school officials.

Fire destroys home

DEXTER — One house was destroyed and another badly damaged Tuesday in fires less than one mile apart.

The home of Larry McMullin southwest of Essex was destroyed and the Donald Henson home east of Dexter, owned by Amon Miller, was badly damaged. Both fires are believed to have been started by an electrical storm.

The Dexter fire department answered both calls, and the Essex fire department also fought the McMillin home fire.

No injuries were reported in either fire.

But they saved the chili...

Firemen rushed to the Harvey Scott home, 330 Crowe St., at 6:54 p.m. Tuesday when a neighbor saw smoke coming from the house and discovered that the only thing burning was the Scotts' supper.

Fire Chief Larry Linnemeyer said the Scotts had rushed out of the house when they received word that a friend had been injured in a traffic accident. In their haste they left their supper on the stove, the television on and the doors wide open.

Linnemeyer said the potatoes were a total loss, but that firemen managed to save the chili.

At 11 p.m. Linnemeyer was called by a woman who told him her hot water heater was leaking and she wanted it shut off. The woman, who lives in the housing project at 136 Cardinal, told Linnemeyer she had called the maintenance man and he had told her to call the fire department because he didn't want to come.

The fire chief said he went to the project and shut off the heater, then added that he might send a bill for his services.

Frost damage may boost cost of strawberries

By PAT GROJEAN

Prices on fresh strawberries will probably be a little high this year, because of the frost damage in April to the crop. The peach and apple crops were also victims of the frost.

Henry DiCarlo, horticulturist at the Delta Center in Portageville, said that about one third of the strawberry crop is left from the freeze, but what fruits there are are nice. The frost occurred April 11, DiCarlo said, and killed the flowers that were open and the large and small buds.

He said that about May 12, the Hornersville growers did start picking strawberries, but this is "somewhat later than usual." The reason is that the early blooms and buds froze, thus causing the early picking season to be lost.

Strawberry plants in this area bloom and fruit the first of May or June, and have a once- a- year fruiting period.

Prices may be higher, but consumers need to realize that growers have a problem because their costs remain the same, while the crop is short, DiCarlo said. He explained that even though fewer berries are produced, the cost of producing these is as high as if it were an average crop.

C&L Orchard in Dexter reported that the freeze cut their strawberry crop about half, and destroyed about 85 per cent of the peach crop and 55 per cent of the apple crop.

Peaches and apples did receive some damage, but most growers are still trying to assess the loss, DiCarlo said. He added that it is puzzling because at certain sites, nearly half the crop may have escaped, while at other sites, most of the crop was lost. It varies by site, elevation and varieties, he added. "The best guesses that growers are stating is about one fourth to one third of the crop has been damaged," DiCarlo said.

Peaches usually begin to ripen around mid June and peak about mid to late July.

There has been some injury to apples, DiCarlo said, although they are heartier than peaches and can apparently stand more cold. DiCarlo predicted there would be a reasonably good apple crop and that the apple situation was much better than peaches.

Some of the strawberry growers mentioned by DiCarlo were Lawrence Miller of Clarkton, W.D. Maddox of Gideon, Pat Burlison and Junior Tucker of Hornersville, Mrs. Bob Jackson of Charleston, John Hayes of Campbell, Homer Stamp of Illmo, Thelmo Chism of Dexter and Carlton Rogers of Dexter.

Other growers on his mailing list are Bill White of Bloomfield, Rex Williamson of Bloomfield, V.M. Watkins of Puxico, Robert Andrews of Puxico, Paul Sitton of Dexter, Archie Thurston of Dexter, Doyle Frances of Advance, Lawrence Thurman of Cape Girardeau, Joe Robinson of East Prairie, Sarah Harris of New Madrid and Robert Scott of New Madrid.

Acreages of strawberries are not as great as they once were in the Bootheel, according to DiCarlo. One of the difficulties is lack of labor. Strawberries require a high degree of labor, especially at harvest time. And the fact that they are a very perishable commodity, makes it necessary to harvest immediately.

Another reason for the decline is that berry prices did not keep pace with the expenditures farmers had to make for plants, chemicals and machinery.

A third reason is that many strawberries now are imported from Mexico, especially for processing. DiCarlo said that this area used to grow a lot of processing berries, but no one around here does any more.

There was no sharp beginning to the decline, he said, but it seemed to start in the early 1960's.

Talks to resume

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Negotiations were scheduled to resume this afternoon in the 34-day-old strike by Ozark Air Lines mechanics, which has idled some 1,800 Ozark employes and shut down operations in 62 cities.

Health program termed failure

MALDEN — The Bootheel Regional Health Council Tuesday night recommended that the Family Health Services program of the Delmo Corporation cease to be funded for continuation of the program.

Council members said Family Health Services has not met criteria established a year ago and has failed to get endorsements from providers of health services. The council also felt the cost of administration of the program was too high, using 70 per cent of the total budget for that purpose.

Four other programs were approved, including the state division of health program for the prevention of veneral disease at a budget of $1,827,205; state division of health immunization program, $285,000 budget; Delmo Migrant Health Program, $81,605 budget and the Senior Citizen supplementary assistance program of Delta Area Economic Opportunity Corporation, $22,972 budget. The DAEOC program assists four projects consisting of the senior transportation programs in Malden and Hayti Heights, the senior citizens hot meal program in Charleston and the provision of additional mileage for DAEOC family service aides to transport persons to medical facilities.

Don Whitehead of the Comprehensive Council in Jefferson City announced that the Bootheel Comprehensive Council will be officially approved for a budgeted program of $66,376, beginning June 1.

The council will hold its next meeting June 19. New officers will be elected and council members will be appointed to four year terms.

PAYS TO ADVERTISE

Newspaper publishers who squirm under threats, real or imagined, of censorship and government control, are apt to get almost violent when someone suggests that business and industry could save a lot of money by discontinuing all advertising. Some misguided theorists even go so far as to suggest that laws be passed prohibiting advertising on the grounds that with this expense eliminated consumers would pay lower prices.

These theorists evidently believe the American economic system is a sort of perpetual motion machine that rolls along under its own momentum with no stimulus from the efforts and initiative of businessmen. They do not realize that advertising is used not only to promote the sale of goods and services in a competitive market, but also to give information about issues of public interest affecting the operation of basic industries whose products are essential to the nation.

For example, in nearly 15 states some action has been started to either abolish or restrict advertising by utility companies. This could become a dangerous situation in a nation where majority public opinion determines the success or failure of any business enterprise, no matter how large or small. It has been established by opinion surveys that most people favor investor ownership of public utility companies over government membership, and these companies need some means of communication with their consumers.

Suppose that electric companies, for instance, would be prevented from advertising on the grounds that there is an energy shortage. So why advertise? Carry this a bit further — many people feel there are already too many automobiles, so why permit the car manufacturers to advertise, especially when these cars use up already - short gasoline supplies.

Shortages of many food products exist, so why should the stores advertise for customers? Because some people believe that television sets are a bad influence on the young, shouldn't makers and dealers be banned from advertising these products? Carry this as far as you like, but the fact remains that advertising has been one means of maintaining a competitive market and keeping prices where they are, instead of even higher.

When people talk of killing off advertising, they are talking about eliminating something that makes every Main Street in the country go into the competitive free market, as well as providing the chief and independent support for a free press. If competitive advertising is prohibited, it would be followed by a host of other free trade restrictions, and this restriction would move into other fields. Can you guess whose basic freedoms would be collared in long run? Yours.

Speaking of advertising, we are reminded of the classic story of William Wrigley of chewing game fame. Wrigley was said to have been riding on a train with a friend (this was long time ago) when the friend pointed to the frequent Wrigley gum signs along the right of way and adjacent highways. "Why do you spend all this money on advertising?" asked the friend. "Your business is establsihed, your gum is famous and the competition is almost non-existent." "Well," answered Wrigley, "How fast you think this train is going?" "Oh about 60 miles an hour," answered the puzzled friend, "Why?" "Don't you think that is fast enough?" Wrigley said. "Why don't they just take off the engine and save all that expense?" The friend had no comment.

"Two basic errors in news policy imperil the First Amendment, the news media and the Republic itself. The first is an over- emphasis of the "adversary philosophy." This is the notion the news media must be forever opposed to and critical of every facet of society, government, business, church, education. The second error is the "advocacy theory," the practice of shaping news content to conform to editorial policy. Often this error is unintentional, tracing to fundamental failures in the selection (or rejection) or news date and the interpretation placed thereon. But it always misleads the public." — John E. Tilton, National Advisory Board, AIM (Accuracy in Media), Washington.

IN A NUTSHELL

In our industrialized, suburbanized society, orderly day - to - day living depends on the uninterrupted services of certain basic activities. Every time a railroad strike is threatened, people are reminded that railroads are among those vital services that must be maintained.

Unfortunately, except in these moments of crisis, the railroads are usually taken for granted. Consequently, the handicaps, under which they have been operating for many years, have been ignored by the public, Congress and regulatory authorities. The president of the Association of American Railroads, Mr. Thomas M. Goodfellow, put the railroad situation in a nutshell when he said, "If I may use the vernacular, I'd say the No. 1 trouble is the name of regulation. No responsible person in the railroad industry objects to regulation, as such. But all responsible railroad people object to regulatory restraints carried over from the last century. The other paramount railroad problem is inequality in government promotion of the several modes. It's absolutely incredible that a government can pour out unlimited tax dollars -- $229 billion in the past 15 years alone -- for forms of transportation in competition with railroads, and still treat railroads as though competition did not exist."

The broad range of railroad problems have been reviewed and corrective recommendations made in the Report of America's Sound Transportation Review Organization. They all add up to one conclusion. Either the railroads will be allowed to go ahead as private enterprises and attract the capital needed to meet demands, or the taxpayers will be saddled with the astronomical cost of maintaining rail transport through nationalization. The fact remains that the railroads are among those services without present - day society cannot function.

Are you getting a little tired of hearing young people accuse the older generation of all the ills in the world? Then you'll appreciate a letter W. F. McCurdy, vice president of public relations for Sears, wrote to his college - bound son.

Among other things the letter pointed out: "You are fortunate to be a citizen by birth of the greatest country on this earth. Your generation has been freed of the nagging worries of food, clothing and shelter. You're the product of an affluency which has been created for you by your parents.

"Today's generation is able to afford a hypersensitivity to social problems ... but sensititivity is not the property of the young, nor was it invented in 1950. Your generation didn't invent it, and what you seek to attain all mankind has sought to attain.

"We (the older generation) are the people who have increased the life expectancy in this country by more than 50 per cent. We have eradicated plagues ... developed the Salk vaccine ... reduced the working day by one-third and at the same time more than doubled per capita output.

"We are the people who built thousands and thousands of high schools and colleges and spent billions on higher education to make it available to the millions. We are the people who defeated Hitler, contained Stalin, and made Khrushchev back down. Today there is a flag and a plaque on the moon attesting to the fact that we put the first man there. We have split the atom ... created great literature, exciting architecture, and conducted experimentations in all the arts ..."

Mr. McCurdy then points out that there are many things his generation has not done right, and there are many things his son's generation can do to solve social and economic problems.

THAT DIRTY MONEY

JEFFERSON CITY — The national Watergate scandal has a message for Missouri, according to one of the state's top election campaign experts.

Millions of dollars are poured into campaign treasuries in Missouri, and into lobbyists' accounts to gain favor with politicians, Al Sikes pointed out in a speech this week. "This money is the lifeblood of political leaders and creates severe temptations."

Sikes was director for Gov. Christopher S. Bond's campaign last fall and was director for the campaign of Attorney General John C. Danforth when he ran in 1970 for the U. S. Senate. Now he is director of the state Department of Community Affairs, and is a former assistant attorney general.

He is concerned about the damage done to our system of government, when money is used to buy influence and when dirty campaign tactics are used. The Watergate election campaign scandal, and similar practices, "seriously taint both political parties and the legislative and judicial branches," he said.

"It seems clear, as we review the scandals that have rocked government in this country and in Missouri, that large sums of secret money are normally the root causes," he noted in a speech to the Owensville chamber of Commerce. "I have seen the temptation created by offers of large sums of money ..."

Yet, he pointed out, attempts in the Missouri legislature to strengthen regulation of campaign spending, conflict of interest and lobbyist laws have met with virtually no success. "I am discouraged by what I see."

The state Corrupt Practices Act is a sham, Sikes said. "The holes in this law are exceeded only by a fish net. Gov. Bond's proposal for strengthening campaign spending laws should receive immediate attention."

Sikes believes cash contributions of more than $100 should be prohibited. Candidates should be required to make regular public disclosure of all campagin contributions, regardless of the amount or form or when they are made. The size of individual and non-party organization contributions and loans should be restricted, he said.

Organizations that contribute to political campaigns must be required to disclose the sources of their money. The disclosures must be made before and after the elections, instead of just after the election as Missouri law says.

News media access to political financing "is at the heart of strengthening our campaign laws," Sikes said. A bipartisan state commission must be created to assure effective investigation and enforcement, instead of relying on elected officials, he said.

He also urged beefing up the state's "severely weak lobbyist disclosure law. The public has a right to know how much a lobbyist is receiving, the source of the funds, who receives the money and in what amounts" in the efforts to influence votes in the legislature.

Bills to tighten the Campaign Corrupt Practices Act and the lobbyist law have been before state lawmakers for several years, but they always die a quiet death, usually in committees. Both parties say they support the change, but no changes have been made.

Sikes concluded that it is important for the executive and legislative branches and the Republican and Democratic parties to recognize a serious loss of confidence that the citizens have in their government and their political leaders.

A 42% INCREASE IN 3 YEARS

For 76 years Abercrombie & Fitch built a reputation as a "Grand old institution" for sporting goods, but hardly a place to shop. Profits tailed off and in 1964, alarmed stockholders picked a new president — Earle K. Angstadt, and gave him free rein.

Angstadt realized that more imagination was needed than merely outfitting African safaris, vacationers on their way to Rio, or skiers headed for the Bavarian Alps. The great middle class had changed and was just as intrigued by a money- saving bargain as tenement dwellers.

A&F made prices more competitive, remodeled departments, put revolving displays and customers in windows, opened an in-store travel agency, staged a "resort home show" on the roof, extended catalog selling, sent out huge mailings, and even added the New York News and campus newspapers to their advertising schedule.

An "Outrageous Warehouse Sale" drew 50,000 people the first day. Shoppers lined up the day before the sale started and police had to control the crowds. In three days a quarter of a million white elephants were sold. The next sale is three years away. "We are hoarding our cats and dogs" Angstadt says.

A&F sales jumped from $18 million to $25.5 million in three years. It is no longer a sporting goods store, Angstadt insists. "We are not totally related to the leisure market."

"I LOVE TO FLY"

Flying is almost a daily routine for countless thousands of persons; and, over the years, many millions have become as accustomed to riding in an airplane as our forefathers were to riding in a horse and buggy. And yet, the fact remains that compared to the total population air travel has, as yet, been experience enjoyed by a comparatively few people. Out of a population of over 200 million in the United States, something over 450,000 of us fly daily on some 15,000 flights within the U. S. every 24 hours. This is no figure to sneeze at, but the airlines feel there remains a vast untapped group of potential air travelers.

In one of the most interesting institutional advertisements that has appeared in a long time, a group of U. S. airlines present the story in The Reader's Digest of just what it is like to fly for the first time. More importantly, it tells a neophyte how to proceed from the time he or she reaches the airport of departure until arrival at his destination. The advertisement is presented on a conversational manner as though a stewardess or hostess were leading the first- time air traveler by the hand. She takes him through the check-in process, the waiting room and finally onto the plane. Every step, including the sensation of flying, which in a modern jet is one of the most soothing experiences one can enjoy, is explained and graphically demonstrated with colorful illustrations. One page is devoted to an account of flight planning, weather reporting, plane maintenance, meals and so forth. Every flight is prefaced by reams of computer work on weather and flight planning, after which the captain of the plane -- a pilot with thousands of hours of experience -- passes judgment on the route to be taken. The flight is monitored from the moment of takeoff to landing by ground controllers.

All in all, the message in the advertisment, as given by a remarkably well- informed hypothetical hostess, is one that should make everyone want to take that first trip in an airplane. It's almost a certainty -- and the airlines know it -- that the first flight will lead to a repetition of that commonly heard expression, "I love to fly."

A PLUS FOR PRIVATE ENTERPRISE

The international airline business has one unique characteristic so far as U. S. international air carriers are concerned. U. S. carriers are taxpaying, investor - owned enterprises, while private ownership in the airline industry is unknown in other nations. The farther removed nationally- owned airlines are from the impact of private enterprise competition the worse the service gets, judging by a news report on the airlines of Eastern Europe.

As described in Time magazine, "... most Eastern European lines fly Soviet aircraft, which are primarily designed for rapid conversion into military transports. The seats are uncomfortably narrow and invariably dusty. More often than not, seat belts refuse to fasten. Pressurization is weak and uncertain." In addition, ground service is poor, and schedules are erratic. If a plane is diverted from it original destination, passengers may find themselves stranded for indefinite periods with no assistance from the airline. Who cares whether passengers on a government - owned airline get good service? If they don't like it, they can stay home. There is no competition from private enterprise.

U. S. international air carriers depend for survival upon pleasing the customer. The combination of striving to please customers, and the unparalleled comfort of the jet age -- especially as epitomized in the new 747-- has brought travel within the reach of the average person. As millions of new air "converts" discover the pleasures of second generation jet transportation, world travel will surge to new heights, and the complexion of international relationships will improve immeasurably. Much of the credit must go to the kind of private initiative that knows passengers like dust-free seats and seat belts that work.

LESSONS OF HISTORY

"Case Yellow" was launched at 0330 hours on May 10, 1940. B.H. Lidell Hart, the great military historian said of it: "The course of the world in our time was changed, with far- reaching effects on the future of all peoples..." "Yellow" was the code name for the German invasion of France in World War II. Thirty- three years later we might ponder the words of Liddell Hart. Europe did change and the whole world felt the impact.

Post- war examination showed that the French had a superiority in weapons and men but the will to fight and the leadership were not there when France needed them most. Communists had been at work in the propaganda field in France. It was at that disgusting moment in history when Hitler and Stalin were allies and the Kremlin was aiding Hitler in his schemes of divide and conquer. Stalin would get his repayment from the Nazis later, but in the meantime the world of freedom suffered.

We must keep ourselves strong here at home. We must elect leaders who have an enthusiasm for patriotism. The vicious work of communism and Nazism were demonstrated to the world in 1940 and the power structure of Europe was changed forever. No longer would Europe, the cradle of our ancestry, be the tower of strength and culture. The lot would fall to us to carry the torch. Russian communism still menances, even more than it did in 1940 when the future of all people was changed. We alone can prevent another "Case Yellow." HLH

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON— President Nixon is quietly preparing to fight back against the Watergate charges.

The thrust of his counterattack isn't certain. But trusted aides are putting together evidence that subversives were conspiring to undermine the political system.

These aides, working in strict secrecy, are trying to show that the threat of subversion and violence during the 1972 campaign justified extreme counter measures.

If the President adopts the line they are preparing, the word will go out from the White House that Reds, radicals and subversives sought to bring down the system by creating political turmoil. Some of these radicals, it will be charged, infiltrated the George McGovern campaign.

It has always been the first rule of Nixon politics that the best defense is an offense. In private, the President has become militant about Watergate. He has told intimates that he has no intention of going back on television with a long apology for the Watergate offenses.

He indicated, instead, that he will hit back at his accusers. He will explain for the record that he can't offer detailed denials without interfering with the judicial processes and jeopardizing the rights of the accused. Then he intends to counterattack.

It is quite true that the White House was flooded with scare stories on the eve of the 1972 campaign. Most of them came from Robert Mardian, then the Justice Department's internal security chief, who worked himself into a state of political paranoia.

He began chasing subversive shadows with such a vengeance that his counterespionage efforts took on the dimensions of a police- state operation. He bombarded his superiors with warnings of civil disorders and political disruptions. Among those who received his intelligence reports were the Watergate conspirators.

DIRE WARNINGS

We have obtained access to some of these hush- hush reports, which White House aides are also searching for evidence for the President's counterattack. As nearly as we could determine from the dozens of documents we have examined, however, the dire warnings turned out to be highly inflated.

Typical was a January 18, 1972, memo to Mardian from the chief of his Analysis and Evaluation Section, John L. Martin, reviewing "current intelligence." The "principal objective" of the "antiwar leaders," he warned ominously, was to disrupt the Republican convention and to defeat President Nixon.

"The disruption of the Republican convention represents the final phase of a three- phase program designed to defeat President Nixon in the 1972 presidential election," declared the intelligence analysis.

"Phase One was the People's Grand Jury Demonstration held in Washington, D.C., on October 25, 1971. Phase Two will consist of individuals following President Nixon's campaign around the country urging his defeat.

"Phase Three consists of a plan to have 500,000 to one million people attend the Republican National Convention in an attempt to deny President Nixon the Republican Party nomination."

The convention then was scheduled to be held in San Diego, and the analysis quoted a confidential FBI source as reporting the disrupters "have secured approximately 3,000 guns (small arms of various descriptions) and are equipping several trucks with armor plating." It was a report, however, that couldn't be verified.

The convention later was moved to Miami where, according to the confidential reports, 2,082 crack paratroopers from the 82nd Airborne Division were dispatched in case the police and National Guard couldn't handle the anticipated violence.

An anxious Community Relations Service task force, which was also sent to Miami to quiet tensions, "met with the Commanding General of the 82nd Airborne Division, explained the CRS role and indicated some of the CRS concerns if the military is deployed."

The daily crisis reports sent back to the Justice Department from both the Democratic and Republican conventions, however, showed that only a handful of agitators went to Miami with violence in mind.

Typical was this report on the eve of the GOP convention: "At present there are no major indications of problems. We have made initial contact with officials and community groups. From these initial meetings, there is an indication that there will be minimal or no involvement of minority community groups. The protesting groups intend to keep things non- violent..."

Mardian's nightmare never materialized.

NEW YORK (AP) — Things a correspondent might never know if he didn't open his mail:

African native wives refuse to eat eggs for fear they will have bald- headed babies. On the other hand, spiders are prized delicacies in some sections of Southeast Asia and India. They are rich in protein. Food is a matter of geography as well as taste.

America is getting two-wheel- minded. Last year, for the first time since the first World War, more bicycles than cars were sold in this country. About 40 per cent of Americans now ride bikes for exercise, and many use them as vehicles to go to and from work.

Doctors often resent a public impression that they are greatly overpaid. The American Medical Association points out that a government survey last year showed physicians averaged an income of $40,500 annually for a work week of 62-63 hours. On the basis of a 40- hour week, that would amount to $26,000 a year.

Household hint: Many diners don't like an extremely fishy taste in fish. This can often be avoided if you clean the fish immediately after catching them.

Quotable notables: "Nothing is easier than fault-finding; no talent, no self-denial, no brains, no character are required to set up in the grumbling business." — Robert West.

Some difference: Ever wonder what the real difference is between a million and a billion? Well, if you gave your wife $1 million and told her to spend it shopping at the rate of $1,000 per hour for 40 hours a week, it would take her only 25 weeks to get rid of it all. But if you gave her $1 billion to spend at the same right, it would keep her happy for some 481 years. So why not give her the billion?

Council takes action on city improvement projects

PORTAGEVILLE — Action on several projects, including proposed street blacktopping, mosquito control and possible a garbage collection system operated by the city, is underway by the city council, headed by Mayo Barry Richardson, whe assumed duties two week ago.

Announcing the project under consideration, Mayor Richardson said "We want the people to know the council is aware of the problems. We can't cure all of them, but we are trying ro cure some of them. Streets proposed for blacktopping, with property owners and the city sharing costs are Clover Lane; Workman Street, between Sixth and Seventh streets; Tenth Street, between McArthur and McCrate streets; the north 300 to 400 feet of King Street near the school; Eighth Street, from Huffman to McArthur Streets; around the armory to 12th Street and over to McCrate Street; Fifth Street, from McCrate to King, and Route 162, in the city limits.

In addition to the blacktopping, graveling will be done in areas where needed and also to streets in the Bay Ditch area.

Richardson said the city has purchased a new backhoe and is looking for a used motor grader to improve ditches and street drainage before the street work can be done.

Delivery of a new mosquito fogging machine is expected within three or four weeks. Richardson said the machine is four times larger and can cover more territory than the old machine. Until the new machine arrives, Richardson said the company is providing a slightly smaller foging machine.

Richardson said a study of costs and revenue income is being made to determine if a city operated garbage collection system would be feasable. He noted that citiens are paying from $1.0 to $3.00 monthly to various haulers and said perhaps the city could do a better job.

Following a disaster relief meeing, attended by the mayor and Don Rone on May 8 in Sikeston, Richardson said the city has beensigned up for funds to repair any damages to streets and water pumps resulting from flooding.

Man injured in traffic accident

PERRYVILLE — Herbert Thompson, 44, of Arnold was injured early today on Interstate 55 three miles south of here.

The accident occurred at 1 a.m. when a car driven by Claude Dickens, 33, of Festus Route Three came up behind a tractor-trailer truck driven by Thompson at an excessive rate of speed, pulled out to pass, went out of control and struck the side of the trailer which also went out of control and overturned.

Thompson was treated for bruises, scratches and scrapes at Perry County Hospital.

Caulfield feels Nixon offered clemency

WASHINGTON (AP) — John J. Caulfield testified today that he believed the offer of executive clemency he transmitted to James McCord came from President Nixon.

"It crossed my mind that this conceivably was from President Nixon," the former White House aide said.

Caulfield told Senate investigators he knew the offer was an illegal obstruction of justice, but added, "What I'm saying to you, sir, is that my loyalty to the President of the United States overrode those considerations."

Caulfield repeated that he had no personal knowledge that anyone higher than former presidential counsel John W. Dean III had authorized the offer. The President has denied that he authorized or knew about any such offer.

Caulfield testified at the Senate's televised Watergate hearings.

He was asked by Sen. Lowell P. Weicker, R-Conn., what he meant when he testified that he had considered he was doing a "great service for the President" when he offered clemency to McCord, who was then on trial for burglary, conspiracy and wiretapping in the Watergate case.

"It was a great honor for me to serve as a member of the President's staff," Caulfield said. "I had come from a rather humble background, a police officer....I felt very strongly about the President, extremely strongly about the President.

"I was very loyal to the people I worked for. I placed a high value on loyalty. Now out of the blue I'm injected into this scandal. I'm being asked by one of my former superiors to deliver a message that I know to be executive clemency. I tried to avoid it..."

When Dean insisted that he deliver the offers personally, Caulfield said, "I make certain judgments...In my mind I felt that the President probably did know about it. Now I'm going out the door to be more specific, and it crossed my mind that this conceivably was from the President. I believed it. I had to think about that. And based upon all of that background I believed I was doing something from the President of the United States, and I did it, sir."

Caulfield said he thought he was acting to help the President, that he was acting as a messenger between Dean and McCord.

"I know when wrongdoing is occurring," he said. "I knew the offer of executive clemency in this matter was wrong. What I'm saying to you, sir, is that my loyalty to the President of the United States overrode those considerations."

In response to questions from Sen. Lowell Weicker, R-Conn., Caulfield said "there's a definite conflict sir, you're absolutely right ... I knew the offer of executive clemency in this was wrong. What I'm saying is, my loyalty to the President of the United States overrode those considerations."

Caulfield answered a firm "yes sir" when Sen. Daniel Inouye, D-Hawaii, asked: "Am I to conclude that you were aware you were involved in a criminal act of obstructing federal investigations?

Caulfield reiterated to Senate Watergate investigators, at their televised hearings, that he had no direct knowledge that Nixon "made such an offer, endorsed such an offer or in fact had extended such an offer."

Samuel Dash, counsel to the Senate's Watergate committee, questioned Caulfield in detail about the offer of executive clemency.

Nixon said Tuesday he authorized no offer of clemency and was not aware of any.

Uhr resigns as fire inspector

CHAFFEE — Fire Chief Charles Uhr resigned as fire inspector at Monday night's City Council meeting.

Rhr, who was hired on May 8 to inspect businesses in Chaffee, based his resignation on lack of support by the City Council.

The council announced that C & B Construction Co. will begin later this month to clean up the sewer project for the city.

A committee was appointed by the council to look into the possibility of purchasing a new police car.

New remote control fogging equipment was purchased to help rid the city of mosquitoes.

The council instructed city police to contact property owners about old abandoned cars on their property.

Building inspector Matt Hahn announced that he had issued building permits to Richard Smiley, 115 Frates, for a storage building and Ralph Boyer Construction Co. of Sikeston for a new housing project.

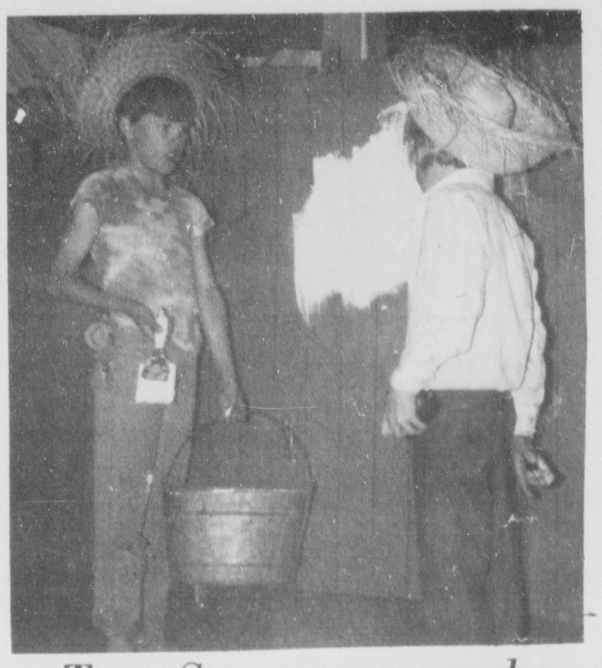
The chore begins

Tom Sawyer, portrayed by Benny Gilliland, begins the chore of painting Aunt Polly's fence as he acts out a scene from Mark Twain's "The Adventures of Tom Sawyer" recently at Southwest Elementary School. The fourth grade classes of the school presented the play at the conclusion of their study of Missouri.

Since George Washington had no children, all his descendants are collateral.



Tom Sawyer persuades

Robbers in jail

Daniel Lasters, with gun, efficiently puts Clifford Wilkerson, center, and Donald Fodge in jail after a make- believe train holdup. The scene is from Silver Dollar City, near Branson. The children are from Mrs. Ruby Silverthorn's fourth grade class at Southwest Elementary School who participated in several skits in "Traveling Across Missouri" recently at the school.

Whitewashing becomes easier

Play characters, from left, Gene Whitehead, Travs Cummins, Brian Bell and Edwin Beasley, fourth graders from Mrs. Sue Miller's room, whitewash Aunt Polly's fence after Tom Sawyer (portrayed by Benny Gilliland, not shown,) has convinced them it's a great honor. This is one of the skits presented by fourth grade classes at Southwest Elementary School after they had studied Missouri history.

Wagons leave Kansas City

Meet me in St. Louis

Fourth graders, from left, Andy Miederhoff, Steve Seiler, Kathleen Williams, Tracy Sutton and Darla Daugherty re-enact a scene from the St. Louis World's Fair of 1904 as the rest of the fourth grade classes sang, "Meet Me in St. Louie, Louie", in a play at Southwest Elementary School. The children are members of Mrs. Mary Ann Maevers' class.

In 1972, commercial honey production in the United States reached 106,050,000 pounds, up 13 per cent from 1971.

Mimi visits Branson

Kim Castleberry, left, from Mrs. Sally Neel's room, represented Sikeston's well- known harpist, Mimi Allen, as she visits Silver Dollar City at Branson. Karen Meyers, candlemaker, and Janet Cobb, as Granny, from Mrs. Ruby Silverthorn's room, demonstrate their wares. The girls were participating in the fourth grade class play, "Traveling Across Missouri", at Southwest School after studying the history of Missouri.

Home plumbing topic of extension clubs

Simple home plumbing repairs was the topic of leader training meetings held in Benton May 4, in Charleston May 8 and in Bloomfield May 16. Home management leaders from Extension Homemakers Clubs attended the sessions.

The training was conducted by Fredericka Plummer of Charleston, area home economist, who told the leaders that, if she could change a washer in a dripping faucet, they could, too.

The leaders brought screwdrivers and wrenches to the meeting. During a practice session they took a faucet apart, took out the washer, replaced the washer and put the faucet back together.

Most of the leaders are presenting programs on "Be Wise About Simple Home Plumbing Repairs" in their clubs in May or June. They are using a publication from the University of Missouri Extension Division as their guide. This publication, C914, "Simple Home Plumbing Repairs", will be available from county extension centers.

The following leaders attended the meeting in Benton: Mrs. R. M. Painton of Painton; Mrs. Wilfred Urhahn and Mrs. Harry Swinger of Benton; Mrs. Hershel Riggs, Mrs. Milton Johnson, Mrs. Ella Minner, Mrs. Clyde Barnes, Mrs. Bob Clark, Mrs. James Beech, Mres. Roberta Rowe and Mrs. Jodie Gillespie of Sikeston; Mrs. Bob Miller of Commerce; and Mrs. Charles Cox of East Prairie.

Leaders attending at Charleston were: Mrs. Byron McDowell, Mrs. Charles McCloskey, Mrs. Carl Darnell, Mrs. Katie M. S. Ivy, Mrs. John J. Stricker, Mrs. Norbert Halter and Mrs. J. J. Reeves of Charleston; Mrs. Ed Heckert of Bertrand; and Mrs. R. L. Guthrie and Mrs. Lydia Clayton of Sikeston.

In Bloomfield, those attending were: Mrs. William Yeakey and Mrs. Carol Chasteen of Bloomfield; Mrs. Gilbert Spears and Mrs. W. C. Wheeler of Bell City; Mrs. Albert Elfrank and Mrs. Anna Weissenborn of Advance; Mrs. Tony Scheeter of Oran; Mrs. Ernest Wheeler of Gray Ridge; Mrs. Phyllis Dowdy, Mrs. Bama Morgan, Mrs. M. H. Grady, Mrs. Clara Baker and Mrs. Paul Thomason of Dexter; Mrs. Eva Kinkade, Mrs. Dorothy Betsch and Mrs. Roy White of Bernie; and Myrtle Millington of Frisco Friendship Club.

Publication award goes to Frank Smith

Craftsmen awards for outstanding journalistic workmanship went to two cadets. Six received cub awards which go to first- year journalism students showing journalistic promise. Two cadets were named to Quill and Scroll, high school journalism honorary society.

Awards earned in the Missouri Interscholastic Press Association contest were also presented.

Cadet Smith, who received a Craftsman award, is the son of Mrs. David Blanton of 1103 N. Kingshighway, Sikeston, and Richard Smith of West Palm Beach, Fla.

Ann Landers

23-year-old should not have to report to mother

Dear Ann Landers: What do you think of the following situation? Alice was married to Bob for 16 years. They had three children. Bob became involved with a young girl in his office. He divorced Alice in Mexico and married the girl. That marriage lasted two years. The girl divorced Bob for another man. (Younger) The following year Bob married another young bird. He died three months later of a heart attack.

Alice now refers to herself as "a widow." I'd like your comment. ---Watching From The Sidelines.

Dear Watching: I'd say Alice has probably had plenty of heartache in her life and she doesn't need more. If she wants to call herself a widow, I can't see that it's any of my busness. Or yours, either. What's YOUR problem, honey?

Dear Ann Landers: I got married at 19, which was a big mistake. Six months later I was divorced and moved back home.

I'm now 23, have a responsible hob and consider myself reasonably mature. All through high school and college my mother telephoned friends and relatives looking for me if I was fifteen minutes late getting home. It was very embarrassing but there was nothing I could do to stop it. Once she called the Field Museum (I was there with a date) and had me paged. (She wanted to tell me about the storm warnings she had heard on the radio and to be careful.)

Last night I said I'd be home at 10:30. It so happened I met some people and didn't get home until 1:30. She yelled for 30 minutes. I feel that a 23-year- old girl shouldn't need to report to her mother if she decides to change her schedule. If you agree with me please print this letter. --- Distressed In Chicago

Dear Chic: A 23-year- old girl should not need to report to her mother. But she SHOULD know how to use a telephone. What I am suggesting is that you should have been considerate enough to let your mother know when you changed your plans--- especially since she is obviously a worrier from way back. Some young adults (both male and female) want the comforts of mama's home and the freedom of living in a hotel, and it just won't work.

Dear Ann Landers; I was not only surprised but disappointed when I read your statement that people in this day and age who have extremely large families are "trying to prove something."

What do you consider an "extremely large family"? Ten children? Eight? Six? Since yo had only one child, maybe you think TWO is "extremely large."

And how nice of you to have offered an explanation for those of us who have "extremely large" families. My husband and I appreciated that very much. You see, we didn't know why we had all these kids. Actually, we thought we loved children, but according to you, that wasn't the reason at all.

I feel you owe an apology to the countless readers who look to you for moral support and guidance and good common sense. You let us down badly with that one. --Wichita Parents Who Love Them All.

Dear Parents: You are right. My typewriter got ahead of my brain when I pounded out that statement and I am sorry. My apologies to all parents of large families who "love them all."

Don't flunk your chemistry test. Love is more than one set of glands calling to another. If you have trouble making a distinction you need Ann's booklet, "Love Or Sex And How To Tell The Difference." Send a long, self- addressed, stamped envelope with your request and 35 cents in coin to this newspaper.

O'Hara's Life Written For Scholars

O'HARA: A BIOGRAPHY. By Finis Farr. Little, Brown. 300 Pages. $8.50.

When John O'Hara died in 1970 he was one of the nation's most highly respected writers and left behind a formidable quantity of work that lovingly detailed a time and a place in America that, while gone from the contemporary scene, still will exist as long as O'Hara's work is read.

Whether or not O'Hara's peculiar appeal will continue to survive is a matter of conjecture, of course. But it is difficult to imagine a book such as "Appointment in Samara," for example, going without readers.

Regardless, O'Hara did what he had to do and it's summed up nicely on the headstone at his grave: "Better than anyone else, he told the truth about his time, the first half of the twentieth century."

To discuss child center

BLOOMFIELD — A meeting of all persons interested in the establishment of a professional child- care center in Bloomfield will be held Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in the educational building of Trinity United Methodist Church.

The announcement was made by Elizabeth Welborn, organizational director, who, as a graduate student of the George Warren Brown School of Social Work of Washington University, has served as a social worker in the Aritha Spotts Child- Care Center in St. Louis during the past year.

The Bloomfield Area Child-Care Center, which will open June 18, is to be run by and for the parents, with executive board membership, who have children enrolled in the center.

The Bloomfield Area Child-Care Center will be designed to offer the young child a positive living and learning experience. Developmental child- care endeavors to meet the wide range of physical, emotional, social and intellectual needs of each child within the frame work of a protective environment.

The proposed child- care center staff will be trained in childhood education so that the children will receive more than custodial care. Everyday routine will be utilized to sharpen the child's natural curiosity andd evelop and increase motor skills and verbal abilities.

What's the Law?

The case of the wrong number

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Maggie had the only X- rated telephone in town. While Maggie led a serene sort of life, her active telephone didn't. It jingled and jangled at all hours of the day and night with callers who were looking for some "action." It seemed that an advertisement had been placed in a newspaper that invited single adults to meet new people by calling a listed number. And as fate would have it, the newspaper erroneously listed Maggie's number as the one to call.

The result; Maggie received more propositions that a read-headed Hootchy- Kootchy dancer and sued the newspaper for damages.

"It went on for weeks and weeks," she told the judge, "and I became a nervous wreck. The obscenity was unbelievable. And while I frequently couldn't distinguish the callers, I couldn't extinguish them either."

"We're sorry about what happened," responded the newspaper, "but it wasn't our fault. The advertiser accidentally gave us the wrong telephone number. Since the mistake wasn't ours, the liability shouldn't be ours either."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you hold the newspaper liable for the wrong number?

This is how the judge ruled: YES! The judge held that considering the nature of the advertisement in light of the current climate for free expression of sexual feelings, any media of communication that wishes to print or distribute this kind of suggestive advertisement must accept the concomitant burden of verifying any telephone number or address given. What happened to Maggie, concluded the judge, was a foreseeable consequence of a failure to check out the telephone number given.

Food prices to level off soon

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Food prices may decline somewhat from current levels, but probably not before next year, according to the Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis.

Clifton B. Luttrell, the bank's assistant vice president and economist, said in the bank's monthly review that food prices may level off late this spring and remain fairly stable for the rest of the year. But he said food prices probably will not decline much in 1973.

Luttrell said farmers have responded to the higher prices by planning increased production this year. As production increases, he said, "prices may decline from current levels."

Red tape delays flood assistance

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Red tape in state government is being blamed for the delay in getting free mobile homes from the federal government to Missouri Flood victims.

"I know of areas where there are two or three families in a home.. These people are waiting for us to get the red tape cut," said Rep. W. O. "Bob" Howard, D-Elsberry.

The Department of Housing and Urban development (HUD) said Tuesday it has 117 mobile homes stockpiled at Granite City, Ill., but none can be sent to Missouri until the legislature approves money for rental or development of sites.

The House Tuesday gave first round approval to an emergency appropriations measure of $468,000 for the housing, which Lt. Gov. William Phelps said was a "last resort" to help more than 400 families.

Howard said flood victims in Illinois are already moving into emergency homes provided by the federal government.

Paul Wilson, an assistant to Phelps, said the state needs to rent 255 sites and develop another 166. He said the need was most urgent at Hannibal, Ste. Genevive and the Winfield-Foley area.

Phelps' office obtained an attorney general's opinion before going to the House with proposed legislation for the housing.

Rep. James "Jay" Russell, D-Florissant, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, said the legislation "should have been brought over a month ago." He said he thinks there might be more red tape when approval for the mobile homes is sought from municipalities. "We're a month away," Russell said, when asked when the housing might become a realty.

The appropriations still needs approval in the House and then must be approved by the Senate and governor.

Modest buying continues through troubled times

From Crockett Scott

"The devil is the author off confusion."

...Swift

Though the market has been moving through the troubled seas of a faltering dollar, strength in gold, continuing deficits in the balance of payments in international trade, rising inflation and, of course, Watergate, the times continue appropriate (very probably) for modest buying.

Such is the thinking of a great many Middle Mississippi Valley investment banking firms.

The market, many of them believe, has pretty well discounted much of the bad news.

Equity analysts your correspondent has talked with feel that we have got to cool the boom, to some extent, to get the market back on track; and that rising interest rates may do just that.

They may affect, adversely, rising profit margins for many companies too, though numerous analysts concur that rising interest rates probably are not so unwanted as a continuing fast rise in inflation. For inflationary rises in raw materials cannot be passed along to the consumer as fast as the prices for raw materials go up to the manufacturer.

The investor is aware of this, Mid-South equity anlysts observe; as the market indicates. The investor is afraid of the future. Good earnings reports are a fact today, he concedes, but will they be tomorrow?

Looking down the road into late 1973 and early 1974 there are grave doubts.

As countless individual common stocks drift lower, certainly one should be alert to them, SEC-registered representatives tell your correspondent; for they can't continue to descend forever; and the emphatic point is made that those of fair quality or better which have slipped to mere fractions of their former prices have much greater upside potential than downside.

The potential investor is advised by competent professionals that there is and always has been the possibility of making the mistake of waiting too long to commit your money.

Courage and money committed in times of depressed markets have paid off handsomely in times past; the same could be true again.

Chartists who look at the Dow Jones Industrials in the low 900s, in contrast to the ebullient rise beyond the 1050 level a few months back find it difficult not to wax enthusiastically, though some of their number concede that the market could show further vulnerability.

In buying equity in current markets, one certainly should seek to buy issues on the floor, of course, SEC-registered representatives emphasize; — as in down markets such as we have been having, today's low may not mean a thing. Tomorrow a depressed issue could be even lower.

This may be interpreted from SEC-registered counselors as inconsistent; but it is well to remember that the market is indeed inconsistent;one seldom buys at the very bottom or sells at the very top; the investor tries to buy relatively low and sell relatively high.

An example of the vagaries of a particular equity, one believed by many to be near its low is Kaufman & Board, down into the mid-twenties recently from the mid-forties a few months back. Yet Kaufman & Broad dropped five points or so in a single day following critical comment in Barron's about its methods of accounting.

Texas group leads antibusing stand

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A 255member Texas delegation led the way here Tuesday for a strong antibusing stand by the National Parents Teachers Association convention.

The group voted 605 to 353 to approve a legislative proposal opposing "involuntary assignment of students to achieve racial balance.

"A spokesman for the organization noted that the proposal must be ratified by at least 31 state organizations before it becomes part of the national P-TA's legislative policy, but said delegates also approved an antibusing resolution that goes into effect immediately as representing the views of the convention delegates.

The spokesman said the Texas delegation, which made up 20 per cent of the voting delegates, drew support form delegates from Virginia, Florida and Oklahoma, in its drive to put across the antibusing proposals.

The group also acted to elect Mrs. Lillie Herndon of Columbia, S.C., as national president. Mrs. Walter Kimmel of Rock Island, Ill., was chosen first vice president and Dudley E. Flood of Raleigh, N.C., was elected second vice president.

Selected as regional vice presidents were Mrs. Romine Foster of Rushville, N.Y., in Region One; Mrs. Robert E. Reynolds of Williamsport, Pa., in Region Two; Mrs. Sidney R. Raike of Chicago, Region Four, and Mrs. LeRoy Schulenberg of Independence, Mo., in Region Six.

Executive committee has faith in Harding

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The executive committee of the Missouri Baptist Convention has again declared its "complete confidence in the integrity, dedication and character of our executive secretary..." Dr. Earl C. Harding, who has held the post 20 years.

The committee, after meeting Monday to review charges against Harding, said it is ordering another audit, at his request, to cover all funds for 1970, 1971 and 1972.

"It is imperative that our people have these details ... so they may be aware of the harassment he has been subjected to ... over the past several months," the committee said.

The committee's report, issued Tuesday, was the sixth statement in 15 months of its confidence in Harding.

Pressing the charges are Dr. Tom Anderson, mayor and Baptist lay leader in Columbia, and the Rev. James W. Hackney, pastor of the Maplewood Baptist Church near St. Louis.

Hackney was removed as chairman of the executive committee Monday at the request of the other 12 members. The Rev. Frank Myers of Warrensburg, chairman of the convention's executive board, appointed James F. Ford, a lawyer at Kennett, to succeed Hackney.

The executive committee meets each month and oversees the staff and financial affairs, which include a budget of $5.6 million this year.

One of the charges against Harding was that $12,450 was overspent, with the money coming from three different accounts. The executive committee said Harding obtained the committee's permission in advance to reallocate the money and spend it.

Another charge was an alleged kickback on $1,613 worth of work done at Harding's home by R. E. Smith, a St. Louis contractor who had done other work for the convention.

4 injured in 2 accidents

Four persons were injured Tuesday in two traffic accidents in Sikeston.

Three of the four were injured when their car ran into the rear of another on East Malone Avenue about 5:40 p.m.

Treated and released for minor injuries at Missouri Delta Community Hospital were Lonnie Lee Millner, driver of the car; his wife Rose Marie; and another passenger, William Lawrence, all of Alsup Trailer Court in Miner.

According to police, the Millner auto ran into the back of a car driven by Breville M. Freeman, 224 N. Handy. Freeman's car was stopped in the inside westbound lane of East Malone waiting to make a left turn into Baugher's service station when the accident occurred.

One person was injured in an accident at 5:30 p.m. at the intersection of South Main and Virginia streets.

Linda Smith, 26, of 226 Moore Ave. was treated at the hospital for multiple cuts and bruises and a fractured rib after the car in which she was riding struck another car from behind at the intersection.

She was a passenger in a car driven by James Vinson, 309 Branum, which struck a car driven by Gary L. Fox, 321 Virginia. Both cars were traveling south on South Main Street at the time of the accident.

Job information service available

Missouri Division of Employment Security offices are now providing a new feature, job information service, available to all job seekers, and it should have special interest to recent high school and college graduates.

H.D. Lambert, manager of the Sikeston office, said the job information service is a flexible self- service system of exposing job applicants to listings of all current job orders in the Bootheel area and throughout the state. Applicants read the job lists and make their own job selection by means of viewers located in the Sikeston office.

Lambert said the job information service, tested nationally, has operated in Kansas City and St. Louis during the past year with "great success" and is now extended to all offices of the division.

From the information on job listings, applicants can determine the kind of job, experience required, hours of work, salary and the city in which the opening occurs. Employer names are not included. Employment service interviewers will arrange for referrals of those workers who meet the requirements of the job selected.

The job information service works fastest for the worker who knows his skills. Applicants who need more intensive help can receive job finding assistance plus aptitude testing, vocational counseling, information on apprenticeship and training and referral to other community services.

bounting federal revenue sharing funds. Bond had recommended $1.9 billion for the total.

An $87.3 million appropriations bill for capital improvements throughout the state remains to be acted on, but was given tentative approval by the House Tuesday, after nearly three days of debate.

More than $70 million of the bill would come from federal revenue sharing funds.

Rep. James "Jay" Russell, D-Florissant, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee said the House "over spent" the federal funds, by approving an amendment to the committee's version to shift a $6.4 million appropriation for a veterinary complex at the University of Missouri-Columbia from state general revenue to the federal funds.

Russell said the veterinary transfer would mean a deficit of $3 million.

The House also gave first round approval to a bill to provide $468,000 for temporary housing for flood victims. The bill originally called for $750,000, but was amended Tuesday after revised estimates of the money needed were received, Russell said.

The bill sent to the governor by the Senate brings to 30 the number of bills sent to him this session. He has vetoed one, and signed two others.

The Senate gave $161.5 million to higher education, in the eight bill package passed Tuesday. The House had appropriated $168.1 million.

I-SC faces Humansville in opener

COLUMBIA, Mo. — Illmo- Scott City heads into the semifinals of the Missouri high school class A state baseball tournament at Springfield, Mo., this weekend with a 9-2 season record and their sights set on the first class A state title. This is the first year for the two class system.

Coach Bill Wilthong's Rams will face Humansville, 8-6, at 4 p.m. Friday with the winner advancing to the title bout Saturday afternoon at 1:30. Kansas City Pem- Day, with a 14-9 record, goes against StLouis Priory, 12-9, in Friday's 1:30 opener.

Defending state champ, Lafayette, playing in the 2A class this season, failed to make the semifinals. The 2A pairings for Lemay this weekend have St. Joseph Central (20-3) playing Chaminade (15-7) at 1:30 and Fox of Arnold, 10-5, going against Hazelwood, 19-4, at 4 p.m.

Not many people thought that the Rams could get as far as they have but perhaps the Rams themselves. Most of the people that you would talk to figured the strong pitching arms of either, Scott Thomas of Chaffee, Jeff Jackson of Kelly, or Randy Gardner of Hayti, would carry their respective teams into the finals of the State tournament.

No one had paid much attention to the Rams pitching staff, composed of hard throwing lefthander Jim Noon or righthander Don Crews. Noon sports a very respectable 5-2 record with wins over Scott Thomas, Ken Urhahn, and Jeff Jackson this season. Crews has a 3-1 slate, with his latest victory coming at the expense of the Hayti Indians and Randy Gardner in the Regional Saturday.

The Rams are no pushover from the offensive side either as no less than seven of coach Wilthong's nine men are batting at a .300 or better clip. Linn Ward boast of a .460 average.

"We thought we had a chance and everything began to fall in place." Commented a happy coach Wilthong.

The Rams weren't picked to go very far but after upsetting Chaffee and Notre Dame in the District tournament, have beaten Kelly and Hayti to prove that they are no flash in the pan but are a solid baseball team..

"We knew that if our hitting came along that we could play with the other teams in the area," Coach Wilthong said.

The Rams will be taking their 9-3 record into the State semi- finals against Humansville, whom they know nothing about. Humansville is located some 75 miles northwest of Springfield.

Coach Wilthong will send Jim Noon to the mound in the 4:00 p.m. encounter.

"We stand as good a chance as anyone to win the championship. Our boys (Crews and Noon) are capable of pitching with any boys," coach Wilthong continued.

The winner of the Rams game will play the winner of the Kansas City Pem-Day and Priorty game for the State championship, Saturday at 1:30 at Springfield.

At class reunions almost everybody has a gimmick. Try picking the one who doesn't go along.
1. Nope. He's Don Wand. Won school essay contest with "The Art of Pre-Marital Dancing." Gimmick: 200 mm holder to balance his 100 mm cigarette. 2. No. It's Rah-Rah Mendelson, ex-cheerleader. Gimmick: He's wearing it. Smokes whatever he finds in his pouch. 3. No. He's Moe Mentum, alias "Stone Hands" for dropping passes. Just dropped statue of school mascot. 4. T. Deious, school bore. Gimmick: His voice, off-key contralto. Smokes oval cigarettes (he sat on his soft-pack and liked it). 5. Curley Gilroy. His hair was voted "Most Likely to Recede." Gimmick: Staples toupee on. Also staples his roll-your-owns. 6. Right. He's still his own man. Likes his cigarette honest, no-nonsense, too. Camel Filters. Easy and good tasting. 6a. Kicky VIII, mascot. Has eyes only for Mendelson (see 2 above).

Camel Filters. They're not for everybody (but they could be for you).

One-hitter highlights season opener

The Jr. Babe Ruth season opened Monday with Davis & Bird and Harts recording wins. Davis & Bird defeated Elliot Newton 10-4 while Harts downed IBEW 13-3.

D & B provided solid hitting to back up the pitcher, Keller. The first inning went slow for both teams, but during the second D & B broke loose for four runs to give them the lead which they maintained throughout the entire game. Jackson suffered the loss for Elliott- Newton.

Harts romped over IBEW in the second game. The winning pitcher, Standridge, held the IBEW players to only a single hit. IBEW jumped ahead in the first inning by one run, but could not stop their opponent from going on to score. Picking up three runs in the second, Harts played the field well to hold off any more scoring attacks by IBEW. The losing pitcher was Barnett.

Tuesday night's action was rained out, but will pick up again Thursday night.

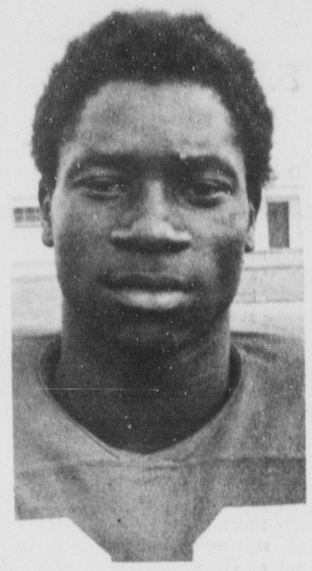
Bean wins



Curtis Bean

Curtis Bean represented Sikeston in the Missouri Class L outdoor track and field meet Saturday afternoon and came away with a first place prize. Bean repeated as champion in the long jump, getting off a jump of 23 ft., 1½ in. This jump bettered his mark from last year, which was 22-3½.

Bean had a clear field as his competition failed to come within a foot of his jump. His farthest leap this season was during the Conference meet held at Sikeston, which was 23-6.

Several colleges have talked with Bean, but nothing definite has yet been planned.

Poplar Bluff's relay team placed second in the mile to also represent Southeast Missouri. Brad Moore provided an individual fourth place when he ran the quarter - mile with a time of 50 seconds.

BOWLING

ROCKFORD, Ill. — Millie Martorella of Rochester, N.Y., captured the 24-game qualifying honors in the $25,000 Greater Rockford Professional Women's Bowling Classic with a point total of 50-88.

HORSE RACING

NEW YORK — Loud, $6.40, surged from last place to snatch the $15,000 Wilson Tech Purse at Belmont.

BASEBALL

TUCSON, Ariz. — Rocky Bridges, manager of the Hawaii Islanders of the Pacific Coast League, was fired.

Cards slip past Mets

NEW YORK (AP) — Today's lesson in baseball fundamentals concerns time out and whose responsibility it is to call it.

In the sometimes overly relaxed world of baseball, sometimes it isn't even necessary to officially call time out. It's assumed when a catcher moves out to the pitching mound that time has been called. By somebody. Anybody.

Ted Simmons, a bright young catcher for the St. Louis Cardinals, perched on second base in the seventh inning of what was to develop into a 5-3 victory over the New York Mets Tuesday night. Two straight inning opening singles in a scoreless game had several of the Mets moving toward the mound with some words of consolation for pitcher Jerry Koosman. Here came catcher Duffy Dyer and third baseman Ken Boswell.

"I noticed," said Simmons, "that none of the umpires had their hands up for time out."

"I thought Duffy called time," said Boswell.

"I thought Bozzy called time," said Dyer.

"I think that somebody should have called time," decided Simmons, "but as the baserunner, I really didn't think it was my responsibility."

Evil thoughts began dancing through Simmons' head, all of them concerning third base. "I edged away from the base and looked back to see if Wayne Garrett was holding on me. He had his back turned. He was the last check. If he's next to me, I don't go. But he wasn't so I took off."

Boswell, at third base, was cool about the development. "I wasn't worried," he said. "I knew he would be sent back. I knew Duffy must've called time out."

Guess again.

"I should have called time," said Dyer. "But I didn't. Some umpires do it automatically when the action stops and I'm walking out to the pitcher."

But Rookie umpire Terry Tata wasn't calling it without a formal request. And none of the Mets had bothered with that little detail.

"I didn't say a word to the umpire," said Dyer, "because I knew I didn't call it and I knew Boswell didn't call it."

When did he find out the bad news about Boswell? "When he yelled at me, 'Didn't you call time?'"

Now, instead of runners on first and second and an almost automatic sacrifice situation, the Cards had men on first and third and a few options. Rookie Ken Reitz selected the best one, an RBI-single that gave St. Louis the lead.

A sacrifice and an intentional walk loaded the bases and pitcher Rick Wise followed with a two-run double. Then Lou Brock delivered a two-run single and what had been a scoreless ballgame just moments before, suddenly turned into a 5-0 affair for the Cards.

The Mets scratched one run back in the bottom of the seventh and two more in the ninth on Ed Kranepool's double. But it was a case of too little, too late. Time simply ran out on the Mets. And nobody called for it, either.

Dodger rookie among leaders

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Davey Lopes, the Los Angeles Dodgers' second baseman, has been leading the National League in batting during the early part of the season—a rare feat for a rookie.

But Lopes' record of 17 stolen bases in his first 17 attempts in 39 games was even more unusual. It was one of the best starts ever for a major league base stealer.

Lopes' early big league baserunning exploits easily surpassed those of ex-Dodger Maury Wills, one of the all-time leading base stealers, as well as Lou Brock, Luis Aparicio and Bert Campaneris, the top three active players.

Wills, who set a major league record of 104 stolen bases during the 1962 season, needed 142 games to steal his first 17 bases and was thrown out on three of his first 10 attempts.

Another vaunted Dodger baserunner, Willie Davis, stole only three bases in 22 games and was thrown out five times in his first year with the club.

Campaneris stole only 10 bases in 67 games in his rookie year with the then Kansas City Athletics in 1964. Aparicio had 21 in 152 games with the Chicago White Sox in 1956, and Brock was safe on 16 of 23 attempts in his first 127 games.

The 27-year-old Lopes, whose name is pronounced like "ropes," says he uses good acceleration and studies the pitchers.

More vocal in explaining the 5-foot-9, 170-pounder's fast start is Tom Lasorda, who managed the Dodgers' Pacific Coast League farm club at Albuquerque where last year Lopes stole 48 bases and hit .317.

"What people don't remember about him is that in stealing 48 bases he also missed 40 games due to military leaves and other things. If he doesn't miss 40 games, which hurts his timing, he steals 75 bases at least," said Lasorda, now a Dodger coach.

Drivers pick Indy favorites

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — There is no pari-mutuel betting in auto racing, but if there was pole-sitter Johnny Rutherford would be no better than a 6-to-1 chance to win Monday's Indianapolis 500.

Some friendly odds-makers, including one or two of the participants themselves, got together in the Speedway garage area Tuesday and rated each driver in the 33-car starting field.

When the session was over, 1972 winner Mark Donohue and 11th place starter Gordon Johncock had been made the co-favorites at odds of 4-1. Bobby Unser, Swede Savage, Gary Bettenhausen and Al Unser were rated 5-1.

Surprisingly, the only other driver listed at 6-1 besides Rutherford was four-time winner A. J. Foyt. The forecasters, taking into account the Texan's ability to charge, figured he'd sit in his 23rd starting spot just long enough to get his CoyoteFoyt warmed up.

Rutherford, 35, from Fort Worth, Tex., was the fastest qualifier with a four-lap speed of 198.413 miles per hour.

Rutherford started in the front row once before, in 1970, but was felled by engine trouble after 138 laps. His best finish ever was 17th in 1969.

Among drivers rated 7-1 were Mike Mosley, a crash victim his last two starts in the 500, and Peter Revson, who is Rutherford's teammate. Mosley starts 21st, Revson 10th.

Braves sign DiGregorio

BUFFALO (AP) — Ernie DiGregorio, the All-American basketball guard from Providence College, could become a millionaire today.

The Buffalo Braves of the National Basketball Association figured it would take at least $1 million to lure DiGregorio from the Kentucky Colonels of the American Basketball Association.

The Braves and the Colonels each made the 6-foot star their No. 1 pick in the rival leagues' draft of college players.

Buffalo called a news conference to announce DiGregorio's signing of a multi-year contract.

Soon after the Braves selected DiGregorio, requests for season tickets poured in. Fans openly admitted they looked forward to seeing the ball-handling wizard working with Buffalo's front line of 7-foot center Elmore Smith, veteran forward Bob Kauffman, 6-8, and rookieof-the-year forward Bob McAdoo, 6-10.

In three years at Providence, DiGregorio scored 1,760 points for an average of 20.5 and finished with 527 assists in 86 games, a Friars' record.

DiGregorio helped carry Providence to a 23-2 regular season record and into the 197273 NCAA playoffs. The Friars won the NCAA Eastern title with a 103-89 victory over Maryland.

Recently, he led the United States team to a 4-2 series victory over a touring Russian squad. He averaged 18.6 points per game and scored 25 in the final meeting as the U.S. posted an 89-80 overtime victory over the Soviets.

CHICAGO — The formation of a professional tennis league, World Team Tennis, was announced and George MacCall, nonplaying captain of three U.S. Davis Cup teams, was named commissioner.

TODAY IS MAY 16, 1973.... ANOTHER BEAUTIFUL DAY IN SIKESTON, MISSOURI

Mr. Kenneth Dement

Sikeston, Missouri 63801

Dear Kenny:

The City of Sikeston is losing a most excellent City Attorney in losing you.

The Sikeston Police Department wants to take this opportunity to express their appreciation for your legal services during the past year you have served as City Attorney. The Department feels that they had in you a strictly impartial representative for cases brought before Municipal Court. You were always honest and fair -- by that we mean that you stood up for a Policeman if you felt he was correct in an arrest and, likewise, you stated so if you thought the law officer was in error.

We as a Department take this opportunity to say "Thanks for your support of a Department that is in earnest in its efforts to provide law and order in the City of Sikeston".

Sincerely,
THE SIKESTON POLICE DEPARTMENT

Dear Mr. Blanton:

Would you please print this letter of thanks to the following firms of Sikeston for making it possible for our fourth grade class to visit their businesses and see how they work:

To the Sikeston Concrete Products Company and Mr. and Mrs. Dale Ham for friendly welcome and getting to see the computer work, also for the pencils.

To Malone & Hyde for allowing us to visit their construction site for their new refrigeration building and seeing the steel support beams for the ceiling being placed by the big crane.

To the McMullin Asphalt Company for allowing us to tour their plant, although we were sorry and disappointed that they were not in operation due to a technical difficulty.

And last but not least to Mr. Ray Clinton for making these visits possible and for the treat for the children at his office.

Sincerely,

Dear Mr. Blanton:

I take this means of thanking all of the news media for the excellent news and editorial coverage on my Right to Work Bills, HB No. 24 and HJR No. 2.

It is now obvious that the Chairman of both the Labor and Constitutional Amendments Committees are being pressured to delay committee vote on these bills. The union bosses have proven their clout within your state legislature. What has happened to government of, by and for the people -- ALL of the people, not just the union czars and their knee jerk followers?

I originally prepared these bills because I was concerned about Missouri's loss of industry to Right to Work states. Having seen the caliber of opposition to these bills I am all the more convinced that Missouri needs a Right to Work law to give the workers some protection from their own leaders.

I assure you this is only the beginning, not the end of my efforts for a Right to Work law for Missouri.

Again, I appreciate the efforts of a free press in behalf of freedom of choice for Missouri's labor force.

Sincerely,
Vic Downing

The ultimate in court reform

The statewide court reform plan proposed by a special committee of the Missouri Bar Association cuts through the confusing layers of judicial bureaucracy to attack the cancer that infects the system. And it does it with such a clean, simple surgical procedure that one can only wonder why the operation has not been performed before.

The proposed court reform is an elementary one yet majestic and sweeping in its impact: All nonfederal judges in the state would become part of the state's circuit court system.

Gone would be 114 probate, 100- plus magistrate, and 400 municipal court judges throughout the state — including the courts of common pleas and the scandal- filled St. Louis Court of Criminal correction and City Courts. Gone would be the patronage offices existing under court clerks like James P. Lavin. Gone would be the George Cadys and Nathan Youngs selected by city officials. Gone would be the needless reviews because lower courts are not courts of record. Gone would be political influences.

Ushered in would be a simple three- tier court system for the whole state, consisting of the Supreme Court, Courts of Appeal, and Circuit Courts. Ushered in would be the nonpartisan "Missouri Plan" for the selection of all judges by the governor from lists submitted by a commission, and the retention of judges through the procedure of running against their record.

All current full- time judges and commissioners who are lawyers would be brought into the new system through elevation to Circuit Court judge status, and upon completion of their normal term would be retained or dismissed by a new judicial council composed of judges.

All courts would be courts of record under the new system, eliminating the need for a new trial when a case is appealed from a municipal or magistrate court. Yet the appeals courts would review Circuit Court decisions for possible judicial error.

The Circuit Court concept will allow considerable leeway in transferring cases and judges from say, juvenile to domestic relations matters when caseloads warrant. All judges would be under the mandatory retirement age of 70, instead of just the nonpartisan- plan judges as at present.

The judges would have direct control of court personnel, eliminating the patronage appointments and hacks that now undermine the court system. Any judges accused of irregularities would be subject to investigation and censure by the state Supreme Court and Judicial Commission.

Fines in Circuit Court resulting from violations of municipal ordinances would continue to go to municipal coffers, thus eliminating a possible major objection. Other objections can be expected from the incompetent court personnel who owe their positions to cronyism and from the non- lawyers who now serve as judges (a 1971 survey should that 261 of 330 municipal judges were non-lawyers). Both groups would get the heave- ho under the system, as well they should.

Making every city, town, county and state court in the state into a Circuit Court won't be an instant panaces, but the move would be a great step forward and would prove increasingly valuable as the years and current judges pass by. Court loads would be lessened and could be much better distributed; silly reviews now required only because of a loophole would be eliminated; the court system would be vastly upgraded in talent and prestige as well as in scrutiny and impartial administration of justice.

The next step for the plan, approved 17-1 by the Courts Modernization Committee of the Missouri Bar, will be discussion by the bar's board of governers in July. Then the proposed change to the Judicial Article of the state constitution would be either presented to the General Assembly for approval to be placed on the ballot, or be placed on the ballot directly through an initiative petition drive.

Given the realities of the legislators' penchant in Jefferson City for chopping up and whittling away at a work of art until it looks like a caricature, the initiative petition is probably the better although more tedious route.

The current proposal is a work of art — ridiculously uncomplicated yet extraordinarily profound. The shocking abuses in St. Louis courts, which aldermen refused to correct and which statutes seem inadequate to deal with, would be much less likely under the statewide nonpartisan court reform!

Ice three inches thick will support one man on foot, 7½ inches will hold an automobile, and a foot will sustain a truck.

Real estate is good investment

If a family has trouble saving money, the Sikeston Board of Realtors advises they make their biggest lifetime expenditure and buy real estate.

The paradoxical, but sound, counsel is offered by the Realtors who are currently celebrating national Realtor Week.

The Sikeston board points out that buying a home is one of the best investments a family can make. "It's a built-in savings account when savings are hardest to put aside," notes Jeanette Waldman, president of the Sikeston board.

Realtors cite from their experience that house payments are one "sure source of savings" which are more systematically maintained than any other form of payment. "There are always new shoes to buy, dentist bills to pay and tires needed on the car but, in the minds of most families, these expenses come after the house payment," Mrs. Waldman noted.

Realtors, licensed brokers who adhere to a stringent code of ethics as members of state and local boards of the National Association of Realtors, are quick to point out that the practical reason for buying a home is only partly the high rate of return when a home is sold on money funneled into mortgage payments. "The increase in value of the average home, coupled with income tax deductions, provide a compelling reason for families to invest their money in home ownership," said Mrs. Waldman.

To further illustrate the sound economics of owning a home, the Sikeston board provides the following example of owning a "typical" home – a $25,000 house financed under a 30- year Federal Housing Administration loan at a 7½ per cent interest rate – and the money saved in one year.

Assuming FHA appraises the house as worth every cent, a family may receive maximum financing of $23,050, which amounts to a $1,950 down payment plus closing costs. The FHA monthly payment, including mortgage insurance, would come to $178.09. To that would be added taxes and insurance of roughly $50.00. Total payments, according to the board's example, would amount to $228.09 a month.

Of that total payment, $20.26 will actually go toward paying off the loan. While it does not sound like much, the amount going into equity increases by 11 cents each month. By the year's end, it totals $244.54.

Realtors point out that increases in property values during the past several years have averaged from 3 to 5 per cent annually, sometimes more. Based on a conservative 3 per cent increase in value, the home has appreciated by $750 in one year.

"Add that to the $244.54, and the cash value of the investment has risen to $944.54, and there's more. Taxes and interest are deductible from income tax," Mrs. Waldman explained.

According to the Sikeston board, an arbitrary but reasonable figure for taxes can be set at $500. Interest per month is $144.06, reducing each month by 11 cents as the balance goes down. That comes to $1,727.40. Assuming a family is in the 20 per cent tax bracket, which is average, the refund from that income tax deduction would be 20 per cent of $1,727.40, or $345.48.

The actual savings, note area Realtors, is $111.67 per month. Deducted from a monthly payment of $228.09, and it's actually costing $116.42 per month to live in a $25,000 house.

"If the same money went into an investment for a 5 per cent return, it would earn only $120 in a year, taxed as income," said Mrs. Waldman. "Each month and each year, the built- in savings account mounts, with an unbeatable 'interest rate' of increases in property values coupled with income tax deductions."

Local men among 150 attending Columbia meeting

Conference director was Dr. J. Derald Mortan, associate professor of electrical engineering at UMR.

Gold again moves up

LONDON (AP) — The U.S. dollar rallied in early trading in Europe today for the second day in a row. Gold inched back up toward record highs.

Dealers cautioned that trading volume was light and some price swings were erratic, with the markets reportedly nervous about how the Watergate scandal would affect confidence in the dollar. The U.S. currency sank to record lows in Europe on Monday.

Local men attend banking session

MEMPHIS — Jim Ramsey and Alan Bryant of First National Bank and Bill Waltrip and Louis Farris of Security National Bank of Sikeston, Mo., are among 136 students attending a one- week session of the Memphis School of Banking at Memphis State University this week, according to Dr. Peter Freund, chairman of the MSU department of finance, insurance and real estate.

"There are other schools of banking designed to provide the banker with a bridge between the college campus and graduate banking schools," said Dr. Freund "but to our knowledge MSB is the only such school that is co-sponsored by a university and the American Institute of Banking."

The Memphis chapter of the AIB and MSU's College of Business Administration established MSB in 1971 with the first session of classes held in April 1972. Course work is aimed at providing specialized middle management personnel with a broader understanding of all major facets of commercial banking.

Specialists in bank and finance from all areas of the country conduct classes in loans, operation, monetary economics and investments and retailing for first year students and long- range planning, international economics, bank law, trusts, personnel, advanced loans and current banking developments for second year students.

Handicraft shop will open soon

An American Handicraft Store will open soon at 522 Greer St., providing a wide variety of craft kits and craft supplies for hobbyists.

The store is owned by J. B. Crouthers and will be managed by Mike Fansler. American Handicraft is a nationwide chain in 42 states. Crouthers has an exclusive franchise in Sikeston and Cape Girardeau, although the Cape Girardeau store is not established yet. It took Crouthers four years to get the franchise.

The shop offers such items as candle kits, glass cutting sets, macrame necessities, paints, canvasses, wood supplies to be decorated, and much more. The store also carries Grumbacher paints which are difficult to find, Fansler said.

When a person buys something at the store, his or her name is put on a list and sent to the company's main office. The person then receives monthly a copy of the American Handicraft magazine about the newest craft articles and kits which may be ordered.

Rodger Lambert records new song

By PAT GROJEAN

"The third time's charm" may be an old wives' tale, but Rodger Lambert of East Prairie and his manager John Hooper of Sikeston are hoping it holds true for Lambert's recently released record, "Long Summer Days."

"Long Summer Days" is Lambert's third record in the 18 years he has been singing and five years he has been recording. The record was pressed and released early this month and seems to be doing well. Lambert and Hooper hope it will hit the top tunes charts.

"Only one out of every 240,000 records hits the charts," Hooper said. He added that there are lots of uses for records that don't hit the charts, like soundtracks for movies.

Lambert's history with previous records has been one of just breaking even. He hopes to do better on this one.

Both Hooper and Lambert suggested that anyone who doesn't have other gainful employment shouldn't attempt to break into the recording business.

"Long Summer Days" is a true song composed by Lambert about himself. All of Lambert's recorded songs have been self-composed.

"The new song is based on the idea that when a person gets older and thinks back on his childhood, he would like to bring back some of the carefree times that are gone forever," Lambert said, then added that the song is about "just growing up."

This new record is a bit unusual, Hooper said, because each side of the record features a different type of music. The flip side of "Long Summer Days," called "Once in a Lifetime", is a "pop" style number which would appeal to the younger generation.

"Long Summer Days" caters to music lovers in general, Lambert said. Disc jockeys refer to it as middle of the road music, which can be considered either rock or country.

Lambert recorded his first song five years ago, titled "The Drifter". The second one, "Ain't No Woman", was pressed two and one-half years ago.

Most of Lambert's music has been "middle of the road", although "Ain't No Woman" was country and "Once in a Lifetime" is rock. "These were just experiments", Lambert said.

Hooper has been managing Lambert for only a short time. They met during a recording session at Bertrand Sound Studio.

Lambert says that having a manager leaves him free to concentrate on writing and composing songs. "I don't have to worry about the distribution any more," he said.

Hooper had never managed a singer before but said it isn't must different from his current job as assistant manager of a Sikeston department store.

Lambert writes his own music and lyrics, using a guitar to compose the tune. He plays by ear, having never had a music lesson.

"I have always just made up songs," he said, "I have songs that aren't even written down."

Lambert has been making up songs since he was nine years old, but has been doing serious writing for only about six or seven years, he said.

He does his best writing at 1 or 2 a.m. "That's when it's most quiet and I can concentrate," he said. He prefers to be by himself while composing.

How does a song become a song? Lambert said the melody comes first, then he experiments to find something he likes.

"Lyrics are just an inspiration," Lambert said. Not all are written from personal experiences like "Long Summer Days".

It took him just 20 minutes to write the lyrics for his first recorded song, but this is unusual, he added.

Hooper said that, with Lambert's songs, everything is 100 per cent original. He does not try to imitate anyone else's style, nor does he perform songs others have recorded. Lambert said a person needs to "do his own thing" in the music business.

"Long Summer Days" was changed four times before it was finally ready to be pressed.

"It takes time to work it out with everyone involved," said Lambert, who tells musicians to do their own thing, but follow a basic melody.

To record "Long Summer Days", he used the musicians at the recording studio, all of whom play by ear.

Lambert worked on the song about one and one-half months to get the music and lyrics just as he wanted.

It took from 7 p.m. to midnight one day and two hours the next day to record "Long Summer Days".

Terry Bowling and his wife Debbie of Bertrand accompanied Lambert.

The song was recorded in stereo, but sounds different on radio because radios play in mono.

At the studio, a song is recorded on four channels. One instrument is played on channel one, another on channel two and Lambert sings on channel three. Channel four is left open. Then the recording is run through the control panel again and Lambert sings again along with it on the fourth channel.

Lambert says it pays to go in and make a tape first and listen to it for a time before recording it to be sure it is like he wants it.

Both Hooper and Lambert stressed the importance of choosing the right time to release a record. The song should be matched with the season it refers to and be released before that season starts, so it can be well established when the season begins.

After a song is recorded, it must get air time to have a chance to become popular. Hooper sends records to radio stations and attends to any other possible means of booking.

"This is where a person with a manager has a better chance," Hooper said. He added, "This is tough -- I guarantee it's double tough."

Hooper said they try to go 150 miles a week in distribution and that usually about one third of all records pressed are given away. The basic mailing list is made up of 13 states. Hooper said that usually 1,500 records are pressed to start with because this number will usually allow a person to break even.

The new record currently is getting air time in Memphis, St. Louis, Anna, Ill., and around the Bootheel area.

"How well a record sells depends on the air time," Hooper said. "There is such a thing as too much air time, too.

If a radio station is giving the record too much air time, Hooper calls the station and asks them to slack off. "Once every two hours is good enough," he said.

How do they know how much air time a record is getting? Traveling salesmen and people in the area tell Hooper and Lambert.

The record is currently on sale in stores in Sikeston and Cape Girardeau as well as surrounding towns. It was given to the stores on a consignment basis, which means that if the store sells the record, they pay for them, if not Hooper will pick up the records.

Hooper says that if they can average five records sold for each store a week, they're doing well; and "Long Summer Days" is doing it.

Hooper said they're not trying for the clubgoer image. They would like to cater more to civic organization functions. He added that the clubgoers are not the record buyers.

The big money is not in records, but in personal appearances, stated Lambert, who did make some personal appearances with his first song.

When making a personal appearance now, he will have band accompaniment and other singers. The performance provides music for everyone.

Hooper warned that people cannot expect a personal appearance to sound like records, although it does resemble it. Lambert had a group of his own at one time, beginning when he was 16. The group was together for about four years and performed many of Lambert's own songs.

Lambert said that his favorite recording artist is Mac Davis, because he has his own style.

Discussing business plans

Rodger Lambert of East Prairie, right, and his manager John Hooper of Sikeston discuss further plans for Lambert's new record, "Long Summer Days," Which was released about two weeks ago. It is Lambert's third recorded song, and is based on his own experiences. Lambert writes his own songs and lyrics.

Springtime Recipe From Italy

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

When it's springtime in Italy cooks are likely to make yeast fritters that hail from Milan. For grownups the fritters may be served with coffee or muscatel; for youngsters the fritters may be offered with milk or hot chocolate. Sprinkled with powdered sugar and served warm, these fritters have a breadlike texture that's chewy. They remind us of a Georgia specialty called, of all things, Tough Bread!

MILANESE FRITTERS

4 cups unsifted flour
1/3 cup sugar
2 packages active dry yeast
1 tablespoon grated lemon rind
1 cup milk
1/2 cup water
2 eggs, at room temperature
1 teaspoon rum extract
Peanut oil
Confectioners' sugar

In a large mixing bowl thoroughly stir together 1 1/3 cups flour, sugar, undissolved yeast and grated lemon rind.

In a small saucepan over low heat, heat the milk and water until warm. Gradually add to flour mixture and at medium speed of electric mixer, scraping bowl occasionally, beat for 2 minutes. Add eggs, rum extract and 1/2 cup flour or enough flour to make a thick batter. Beat at high speed, scraping bowl occasionally, for 2 minutes. Stir in enough additional flour to make a stiff batter. Cover and let stand at room temperature for 15 minutes.

Meanwhile in a large heavy pot, heat peanut oil (enough for deep-fat frying) to 375 degrees.

Stir batter before using. Drop by heaping tablespoonfuls into hot oil and fry until golden-brown on both sides — about 3 minutes. Drain on absorbent paper.

Sprinkle with confectioners' sugar and serve warm.

Makes 3 dozen.

COOKING-UP with judy

Well, readers, since summer is upon us and the outdoor grills can be smelled by kids at the end of the block, the thought of easy salads comes to mind to be served with those wonderful charcoal-broiled steaks, chops, or whatever. Remember to balance out the meals with greens and vegetables. The recipes are provided by Helon Myrick, Bell City High School home economics teacher.

Also included in the column are a quick casserole for hot, tiring days and an apple cake utilizing fresh apples. It's nutritious and delicious.

Happy cookouts.

Pour over peas and macaroni. Toss lightly to coat. Serve at once.

Coffee Corner by Cherie

How often I've argued with people when the same old topic "what's wrong with today's youth?" has come up and they've said it's the parents. "It's not," I cried out, "I know too many parents who've lived a good life, done nothing wrong, and yet had some pretty rough problems with their kids — you can't blame them!!", and I still feel that I'm right. However, due to a recent experience I've had, I've found there is more to being a good parent than just being a good person; and I feel I've discovered an area where I've failed as a parent and quite a few along with me.

I volunteered Charles and myself for the job of being the leaders in May of our church's youth group held each Sunday evening. When out time arrived, the attendance had fallen down from around forty members to two, so it was with heart in mouth and many misgivings that I lined up to take my turn. In fact, attendance was so low, and May being such a bad month what with Mothers Day, Graduation, Memorial Day, and all that, that the church even offered to just stop the group a month early and forget it. I have to be honest, I was very sorely tempted to take them up on this offer, but do it I'd said, and do it I'd try! Now, why did I bother? Well, I really think because as a child it had been drummed into me that anytime you say you'll do something — you do it! You don't look for an easy out, and no matter how big a job you're saddled with, if you took it on it was your baby! This, is where we as parents are failing our children today drastically! we are not drumming into their heads any sense of responsibility to others or even to themselves. This I found out when I began working with these children, (and I have been just as guilty as the next fella on this count). I called each child and parent and was so sorry (I've done the same thing — my pot is just as black as their kettle), to find that lots of parents felt like if the kids didn't want to go they shouldn't have to bother. Well, this is fine, except that lots of times when we're made to do something, like our parents made you and I do it, we find when we go and do this thing we've enjoyed it as well as gotten quite a bit from it. Now, I don't expect any child to come to a program I'm going to put on and suddenly feel the Grace of God enter into him and alter his life forever; but, I do feel that he might come and gain a little bit of something good through my feeble endeavors — at least I'll not be going to harm them and that's more than can be said from some of the movies they might attend instead. I feel that we do need to push our children in right directions, and then when pushed there, we have to keep right on pushing. When they've got to be some place at a certain time — then we must see that they are there, when they're given tickets to sell — then we must see that they do sell them, or food to bring — then we must see that its brought. Perhaps you're saying if we have to push that hard and end up doing most of their work ourselves what good does it do them? The good it does is that it teaches them you get done what you are suppose to do — it drums responsibility into their heads eventually, just as it was drummed into your head and mine. Children are born like Adam and Eve, into a beautiful garden with good things to eat and fun and play as the order of the day; but unfortunately when Adam and Eve ate of that apple the "good life" was over and "real life" handed to them at once. Our children can only stay young and in that Garden atmosphere a very short time and we must early prepare them for the time when they too, must eat of the apple and be thrown out into the world to make their own way. I feel that if we insist our kids take an active part in their church activities, scouts, etc., then we must make sure it is an active part they do take. It does the child no good if the leader is the one that ends up being saddled with all the jobs; and pretty soon we're going to find none of these activities will even be available because no one will volunteer to be one of these leaders considering the fact that they get no cooperations from anyone or any help and end up simply being frustrated by the whole affair.

Charles and I are really having fun with these kids, and I wouldn't trade this experience for the world because it has really shown me where one of my weaknesses as a mother lies. Kids are great, don't ever think they're not, and they're lots of kicks to be with, but they are inclined to want to "dance to the Piper without paying for the tune", and that's where our jobs lie, in teaching them that music, like life, is not free!

Add a little olive oil, lemon juice and garlic salt to yogurt; use as a dressing for sliced cucumbers. Mix the dressing in an electric blender.

To serve over broiled chicken breasts, make a cream sauce and add seedless grapes.

Make sandwiches of thinly sliced boiled ham and Swiss cheese; butter outside of sandwiches on both sides and grill. Good for lunch with a green salad.
